Arabs Want Oil Curtailed To Americans

Move Would Cut Economic Threat Of Some Nations

BEIRUT (AP) — The Arabs should kick out American oil companies unless the United States stops helping Israel, said five Arab countries at their summit conference in Cairo, but nobody knows better than the Arabs that they would be hurt most.

The communique issued by Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Iraq and Sudan after their meeting over the weekend declared: "The Arab nation refuses to see its resources and wealth being exploited and converted into assistance and weapons for Israel. The continuation of such exploitation should be considered an act of imperialism which must be liquidated by the Arab countries."

After the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, the Arabs decided to cut off oil shipments to Britain, the United States and West Germany. The Arabs soon realized they were suffering more than anyone else, and oil started flowing again.

The three Arab states that have most of the oil did not attend the Cairo conference. Saudi Arabia and Kuwait already have made it clear that they do not intend to cut their own economic throats, and even the new revolutionary government of Libya is not likely to choke off the goose that lays a golden egg worth a billion a year.

Of the countries at the confrontation summit-so called because the five nations are those with troops actively engaged against Israel—only Iraq is a big oil exporter. American interests comprise about 23 percent of the Western-owned Iraq Petroleum Co., which produces Iraq's oil.

It would be impossible to hit the U.S. holdings without affecting the whole operation. This in turn would jeopardize an annual income to Iraq of $500 million.

Syria is a minor oil exporter and does most of it all on its own with some help from Russian experts.

Chicken Virus OK, Vet Says

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An Ohio State University poultry specialist and veterinarian, Dr. Clyde Marsh, says consumers need not fear a virus ailment known as "chicken cancer" which affects some poultry.

Marsh noted the concern which developed among some consumers over a proposed change in inspection standards for poultry. The change, if adopted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, would have allowed the sale of chicken parts from birds which demonstrated a virus infection called leukosis. Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin on Feb. 5 rejected the proposed change, saying "even though there is no known link between the poultry leukosis viruses and human disease, nor any known hazard to human health, it is esthetically undesirable."

Dr. Marsh said the virus condition in poultry has existed since 1906 and is specific to poultry. "There is no evidence of its transmission to people who have handled or eaten poultry," he said. He added that the temperature, metabolism and tissues of people are so different from those of poultry that there is no possibility of the viruses being hosted by man. In addition, he said, viruses are destroyed during cooking.

Ohio Solons Eye Women's Rights

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A controversial legislative battle over women's rights hit an inconclusive delay Tuesday night when a House committee refused to vote on bills that would repeal four laws restricting women's working conditions.

The House Commerce and Labor Committee unanimously decided to send the bills to a subcommittee for further study. The bills, sponsored by State Rep. Robert Manning, R-94 Akron, would repeal the state laws that limit a woman to a 40-hour work week and prohibit women from having to lift more than 25 pounds. Manning was appointed subcommittee chairman. The committee played to its third straight audience of more than 250 women urging passage of the repeal laws. Proponents argued that women are denied overtime pay and job seniority.

The Federal Fair Employment Act of 1964 specifically forbids employment discrimination on the basis of race, color or sex, but Ohio's laws do not allow women to work overtime. Proponents argued that the laws must be repealed to bring Ohio into compliance with the federal laws. Repeal of the Ohio legislation has been strongly opposed by the Ohio AFL-CIO. Warren Smith, state secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO, said his organization wants to await court rulings on the issue. He said women's child bearing functions would be "seriously impaired" if the laws are repealed.

The Senate Ways and Means committee heard proponent testimony Tuesday on a bill introduced by State Sen. John Weeks, R-25 Lakewood, that would allow counties to establish county and multi-county transit authorities. The bill specifies that action can be taken only with the approval of the county commissioners. A regional type of transit authority is also allowed in the bill if several counties wish to operate a multi-county transit authority. The multi-county authority would have to be operated with the permission of all participating county commissions.

Weeks said the bill would not create a new layer of government because the regional type authority would have to be operated from a single county. Gaspar Corso of the Cleveland Transit Board testified in favor of the bill. He said it is (Continued on Page 2)

Believe Enemy Plans Disrupted By Clashes

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese commanders say allied forces have disrupted a major new push by two North Vietnamese battalions into the Mekong Delta. They reported 79 more enemy troops killed in the Plain of Reeds, bringing the total to 207 in a series of battles since last Friday.

No government casualties were reported in the most recent clash 10 miles west of the provincial capital of Moc Hoa. Spokesmen said most of the enemy dead probably were slain by artillery, fighter-bombers and helicopters supporting government rangers trying to block the retreat into Cambodia of the North Vietnamese 88th Regiment's 8th and 9th battalions.

Seventeen South Vietnamese were killed and 24 wounded in the earlier fighting along the enemy battalions were intercepted last week in the desolate plain some 60 miles west of Saigon.

Associated Press correspondent David Rosenzweig reported from the Plain of Reeds that ranking South Vietnamese officers and their U.S. advisers believe an enemy drive toward the heart of the heavily populated delta had been "compromised" by the government troops, who now are trying to bottle up scattered North Vietnamese forces.

"The Communists have been set back many months," one South Vietnamese officer said. The officers said captured documents and prisoners revealed the 88th Regiment had planned to make its way during the Tet cease-fire period last week to the vicinity of My Tho, the chief city in the northern delta 40 miles south of Saigon, to be ready for an offensive in the area in mid-March.

Sporadic fighting was continued in the border region near Tuyen Binh, a district town about 15 miles northwest of Moc Hoa, Rosenzweig said.

It was the second mauling for the battalions in three months. Last December more than 100 of their men were killed in an unsuccessful attempt to overrun Tuyen Binh.

Weather Halts Search In Lake For Wreckage

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Two Coast Guard cutters involved in the search for debris and bodies from the TAG Airlines plane that crashed into Lake Erie Jan. 28 with nine persons aboard have been recalled because of weather and ice conditions, the Coast Guard said. Earlier Tuesday night, a Coast Guard spokesman said the ships and their divers would "continue as long as ice and weather permit."

William Lamb of the National Transportation Safety Board and the Coast Guard decided to return the cutters Kaw and Bramble to port because shifting ice on the lake impaired the safety of the divers, the Coast Guard said. A Coast Guard spokesman said the cutters would resume their work "when the situation improves."

Ice earlier in the day had prevented divers from resuming their search for wreckage and bodies. Visibility was less than two miles above the surface and three feet and less on the lake floor more than 60 feet below. The Detroit-bound plane crashed about 15 miles off Avon Lake, west of here.

Whisler Family Loses Home, Contents In Fire

Fire destroyed a barn and a house in widely separated parts of the county early today.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Al Speakman and family of Whisler went up in flames while a barn on the Teegardin Farm located on Goodman-Tecgardin Road in Madison Twp. also burned.

The house fire was discovered at about 7:30 a.m. by a neighbor who notified the Kingston Fire Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Speakman were both at work at the time and their three children, Tim, Kim and Stoney, were at a neighbor's house.

KINGSTON — Fire officials notified the Salt Creek-Tariton Volunteer Department. The Laurelville and Pickaway Twp. departments were also summoned, but the house was completely burned out before it was brought under control.

The blaze is believed to have started in the basement near a fuel oil furnace.

The loss was estimated at $12,500 to $15,000.

Cause of the barn blaze was undetermined and firemen from Harrison Twp. and Bloom Twp. volunteer fire departments and from Lockbourne Airforce Base were battling the blaze until nearly noon today.

The barn contained hay, straw, corn. In addition, several sows and pigs were in the barn. Only a little corn was saved according to Harrison Twp. Fire Chief Donald Thompson.

Thompson said no estimate of loss had been determined.

Auto License Revenue Rises

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio auto license revenues, exclusive of the $5 permissive tax, will pass the $108 million mark for the first time with the close of the 1969 registration year, State Auditor Roger Cloud reported today.

He said with one month remaining in the license year, figures show total registrations of 6,709,731 and license revenues totaling $107,893,420. The registrations exceed the total this time last year by 348,615, and the fees are $4.7 million ahead of last year.

Receipts from the $5 permissive tax levied by some counties amount to $18.3 million.

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — With a blitz of rhetoric, action and publicity, the Nixon administration has taken a giant step forward in the undeclared war to deprive Democrats of a favorite and potent issue—the deteriorating American environment.

The latest move in the President's environmental drive is a 37-point message sent to Congress Tuesday, including 23 proposals for new legislation.

Nixon's proposals have drawn immediate counterfire from congressional Democrats, many of whom were identified with the issue long before it acquired political glamor. Members of both parties acknowledge that public concern—based on scientific cries of alarm and buttressed by personal experience—has made the question of environmental quality an issue translatable in votes. Up to the time of Nixon's message, Democrats sounded the theme that his program involved more talk than action and lacked the muscle and money needed to reverse the tide of polluted streams, toxic air and indisposible garbage.

But many now concede privately the new competition to be identified as pro-environment will help generate the motion needed to pass and fund effective antipollution programs. The possible political impact of the issue which for years was the concern mainly of a group of scientists, was forecast in a 1966 staff study of the Senate Republican Policy Committee: "Clean air means votes. Just how many votes are involved and where they may be found is only now becoming fully appreciated."

Placing an exclamation point on that estimate, Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel said recently the political party with the best record on environment "is going to be the party that wins the most elections."

Partisan issue or not, the environment in the last several months has spawned new agencies, offices and programs to a degree not matched since President Lyndon B. Johnson declared war on poverty.

As his first official act of the decade Nixon signed the Environmental Quality Act of 1969, legislation which for the first time made protection of air, water and land national policy.

He used the words "now or never" in declaring the time had come to stop environmental pollution.

A few days later he made his State of the Union pledge to mount the "most comprehensive and costly program in this field ever in the nation's history."

After initial reluctance, the administration also promised to spend all of the $800 million appropriated by Congress last year to build city waste treatment plants.

By executive order the President decreed a three year, $359 million drive to halt pollution by federal installations.

The President's budget for fiscal 1971, although criticized by Democrats for not providing enough antipollution funds, appeared to surpass previous spending levels in the field.

Nixon journeyed to the Midwest last week at the head of a delegation of cabinet officers and pollution experts to emphasize the federal commitment to upgrading the environment.

Swiss Banks Tax Haven, Expert Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Use of secret foreign bank accounts probably constitutes the biggest single loophole in the entire field of tax evasion, according to a veteran investigator of hidden-funds operations involving overseas banks.

"Switzerland is a tax haven, no doubt about that," Robert Morgenthau told the House Banking Committee Tuesday. "It isn't only for United States Arab leaders, all are using Swiss banks for tax havens."

The former New York federal attorney who was recently fired by the administration for what he called its withdrawal of support for a regulatory bill to curb use of secret foreign bank accounts by criminals and tax cheats.

Treasury officials have said the administration favors the bill's goals but fears it is so broad that it would do more harm than good.

The measure would require record-keeping and reports by persons maintaining accounts in foreign banks protected by secrecy laws, and by couriers who transport cash or securities to such foreign banks.

The Treasury's doubts apparently center on requirements for U.S. banks to keep detailed records, including microfilms, of checks cleared.

But Morgenthau said record-keeping provisions of the bill are essential for enforcement. He voiced concern over what he views as success of some large domestic banks in undercutting support for the legislation.

Stafford Silent On Political Plans

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Astronaut Thomas P. Stafford declines to confirm or deny reports that the White House would like him to run for the Senate next year against Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla.

Asked about the reports Tuesday, Stafford—born in Weatherford, Okla.—told newsmen: "I'm not saying that I will make the race or not make the race. Let's just say that I am not a candidate today."

Find Soil Radioactive Near Denver

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — An investigative group says radioactive plutonium has been found in soil samples from land outside the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons complex 20 miles northwest of this metropolitan area of more than a million population.

The investigation was carried out by the Colorado Committee for Environmental Information, made up mainly of scientists in the local area, whose chairman gave a guarded account of the findings Tuesday.

One committee source said the soil samples were taken in an area ranging up to 10 miles from the nuclear plant and commented that if contamination continued it could prove "a serious threat to the health and safety of the people of Denver."

The population within 10 miles of the plant ranges from dense to sparse. Some of the land is farmed. Dr. Edward A. Martell of Boulder, the committee chairman, would say only that the samples came from "within to beyond a few miles" from the plant.

"There is a considerable amount of plutonium out of the plant area," Martell said, but added:

"The amounts found are of debatable significance. I think we have to do a lot more looking before we can say whether it is harmful or not."

Report Youths Plan To Assist Castro Harvest

BOSTON (AP) — Hundreds of youths assembled in the Boston area today amid reports they were headed for Cuba to harvest sugar cane for Fidel Castro.

Those who would talk with newsmen said they were en route to a ski holiday at Saint John, N.B., as members of a group called the "Ski Masters." They were heavily burdened with knapsacks and sleeping bags, but no skis were in evidence. Moreover, the Saint John area is not noted for winter sports facilities.

In Saint John, N.B., Gerald Elkin, an agent for Cuban shipping, said shipping officials in Montreal told him the Cuban freighters, Luis Arcos Bergnes, was to be boarded there by 500 Americans bound for Cuba.

Cleo V. Keaton Appeal Denied By Supreme Court

The Ohio Supreme Court today dismissed Cleo Vernon Keaton's latest effort to avoid the electric chair for a 1964 slaying.

Keaton, 32, has been in the shadow of the electric chair since he was convicted in Pickaway County Nov. 6, 1965.

The high court set a new execution date of March 18 for him.

However, Keaton's attorneys still have avenues open for further appeals to higher courts on the insanity issue, according to court observers.

Keaton had appealed his death sentence on the basis that a person sentenced to death is entitled to due process of law in determining his sanity.

ALTHOUGH psychiatrists found Keaton sane, his attorneys had appealed the execution on the basis that he was not sane.

Attorney Emanuel Nadlin of Dayton said Keaton once requested that he not file any appeals in the matter because he wanted to get the execution over with.

Nadlin said Keaton's desire to die was the basic reason for doubting his mental competence.

The high court dismissed the appeal with a notation there was no substantial constitutional question involved.

Keaton was convicted of the slaying of Maurice Francis, 50, of Williamsport, who apparently had stopped a help Keaton, a motorist with an apparently disabled car.

Keaton was being sought at the time in connection with the slaying of three persons at Dayton.

OSU Council OKs Warning Changes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Faculty Council of the Ohio State University approved a plan Tuesday to revise procedures by which students are warned, put on probation, or dismissed from school.

The plan, which still needs the approval of the university's board of trustees, would insure every student is given at least one quarter of probation. The plan also would incorporate deficiency points in calculating who is warned, put on probation, or dismissed for academic reasons.

The deficiency points will show how far below the required level for graduation the student is. The plan will not change Ohio State's standards for graduation.

City May Be Sans Fire Protection

Members of the Circleville Fire Department today were warning local industry, businesses, the hospital and nursing homes that the city may be without professional fire fighting protection next week.

A spokesman for the fire fighters said today if no progress is reached in negotiations for higher wages with city council Monday night the department members might have to take "drastic steps."

The spokesman declined to elaborate on what the "drastic steps" might be, other than to say the city may be without fire protection.

Council and representatives of the fire department were far apart in proposals presented at a meeting last Monday.

Report Berns Bought TNT Before Blast

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "In excess of 100 pounds of TNT recently" was purchased by Martin Berns, Shaker Heights police said Tuesday. Officers said they believed Berns used the explosive to bomb the Shaker Heights Municipal Building Feb. 2.

Police also said their belief that Berns died in the blast that leveled the building was strengthened with the discovery Tuesday of a shoe identified as Berns'.

Eyeglasses found in the shoe were sent to Berns' optician to determine if the glasses belong to the 21-year-old Shaker Heights resident.

A draft card registered to Berns was found in the rubble earlier and body fragments have been recovered. The Cuyahoga County Coroner's office has not been able to make a positive identification yet. Doctors said more evidence is needed.

The TNT purchase was made from the Austin Powder Co. in Glen Willow, police said.

Ohio law requires only that explosive sellers keep a record of the name, age and address of purchasers.

Dr. Irving M. Rosen, 50, a Shaker Heights psychiatrist who was shot and wounded shortly before the explosion, has identified Berns as his attacker, police said.

Rosen had treated Berns, who as a teen-ager had received therapy from the psychiatrist, at Fairhill Hospital and at Cleveland State Hospital.

Find Soil Radioactive Near Denver

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — An investigative group says radioactive plutonium has been found in soil samples from land outside the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons complex 20 miles northwest of this metropolitan area of more than a million population.

The investigation was carried out by the Colorado Committee for Environmental Information, made up mainly of scientists in the local area, whose chairman gave a guarded account of the findings Tuesday.

One committee source said the soil samples were taken in an area ranging up to 10 miles from the nuclear plant and commented that if contamination continued it could prove "a serious threat to the health and safety of the people of Denver."

The population within 10 miles of the plant ranges from dense to sparse. Some of the land is farmed.

Dr. Edward A. Martell of Boulder, the committee chairman, would say only that the samples came from "within to beyond a few miles" from the plant.

"There is a considerable amount of plutonium out of the plant area," Martell said, but added:

"The amounts found are of debatable significance. I think we have to do a lot more looking before we can say whether it is harmful or not."

Report Youths Plan To Assist Castro Harvest

BOSTON (AP) — Hundreds of youths assembled in the Boston area today amid reports they were headed for Cuba to harvest sugar cane for Fidel Castro.

Those who would talk with newsmen said they were enroute to a ski holiday at Saint John, N.B., as members of a group called the "Ski Masters." They were heavily burdened with knapsacks and sleeping bags, but no skis were in evidence. Moreover, the Saint John area is not noted for winter sports facilities.

In Saint John, N.B., Gerald Elkin, an agent for Cuban shipping, said shipping officials in Montreal told him the Cuban freighters, Luis Arcos Bergnes, was to be boarded there by 500 Americans bound for Cuba.

House-Senate Committee on the Environment.

Aware that Nixon may be stealing their thunder, the Democrats, including some considered possible presidential aspirants in 1972, are fighting back, branding the Nixon program—particularly his 1971 budget—"a ruse," "a charade," and "just plain bull."

One of these is Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the Democrat's 1968 vice presidential candidate, who quickly branded the Nixon program "slogan-rich and action poor" and his 1971 environmental budget request as a step back.

And Muskie asserted that many of the President's Tuesday proposals are similar to those he made last month.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, who proposed a constitutional amendment to guarantee a clean environment as a right of the people, said the nation needs "more than a few million dollars here, a new commission there, or proclamations of concern . . ."

Sen. William Proxmire, also of Wisconsin, included in some dark-horse presidential lists, criticized the administration for what he said is its late discovery of the issue.

He said that since the beginning of the Nixon administration there have been far more meetings of the National Security Council than the environmental group.

But Nixon administration officials deny heeding dragging.

"For the President, the problem was one of choosing priorities," Herb Klein said the president's communications director, said. "We couldn't get it on any significant scale during the first year of the administration because of the need to revamp existing programs. There was not the time to develop programs and analyze techniques and scientific capabilities."

"But now we are in the second phase," he said. "Simply speaking, that is the need to build the country better in the decades ahead."

But Democrats indicate Nixon's new interest is a reflection of the population.

A bill, introduced in the House Tuesday by State Rep. Norman A. Murdock, R-70 Cincinnati, would force municipalities to share with counties and townships income taxes collected from non-residents.

The bill would end the present policy that allows cities to keep all taxes collected from people working within the corporation limits, but living outside the city. Murdock's bill would let the cities retain 50 per cent of the taxes, give 30 per cent to the county where the worker is a resident and give 20 per cent to the township.

The House Tuesday passed 84-0 and sent to the Senate a bill that would provide a minimum of $1 per capita in aid the state gives to county health centers. Mrs. Ethel Swanbeck, R - 14 Huron, sponsored the bill that would have the state provide 75 per cent and the counties provide 25 per cent.

The House also passed 55-33 a bill that includes foxes as fur-bearing animals protected under Ohio law. The bill is intended to prevent year-round hunting of the fox.

State Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, introduced a resolution that asks the Senate to denounce the "destructive minority" of college students involved in campus disorders.

Kennan Urges U.S. Cutback Overseas

GRANVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Former diplomat George F. Kennan says America must curtail its commitments abroad if it is to solve a "profound" social crisis at home.

The former ambassador to the Soviet Union delivered one of the Owens-Corning lectures at Denison University Tuesday night.

He said solution of the problems of crime, inflation, racial injustice, urban deterioration and alienation of youth will require a major adjustment of our society.

He called for a streamlining of this country's policies "designed to put us in a position where we can concentrate on the problem areas that are really important and stop wasting effort on the ones that are not."

This process, Kennan said, has got to start with Vietnam. "I am convinced that our part in this struggle has got to stop, and the sooner the better."

Some day, after America has out its own house in order, it once again may find a useful role in the world, he said. But for now, Kennan added, "we must go over to the low key and mind our own interests."

Police Question 4 Arabs In Attack On Israeli Plane

MUNICH (AP) — Munich police today questioned four Arabs arrested after a grenade attack in the Munich airport on passengers of an Israeli airliner.

Three of the Arabs were wounded during the attack Tuesday and the fourth was arrested by police who cordoned off the airport to search for accomplices.

Munich Police Chief Hermann Schreiber said officials were trying to determine the motive for the attack. He said police "cannot rule out" the possibility that the target was Assaf Dayan, 24-year-old actor son of Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and a passenger on the plane. But the police added that as yet there was no firm evidence to support that theory.

Young Davan was not hurt. He was at a Munich hotel today under police guard, but police would not say which hotel.

The attack killed one passenger and wounded eleven other persons, including the three attackers, the plane's pilot and flight engineer, a policeman and two British passengers.

Israeli officials said the dead passenger was Arieh Katzenstein, 32, of Haifa. His father, Heinz, 57, was among the six passengers injured.

One of Israel's leading actresses, Hanna Meron, was the most seriously injured person. She was reported in "extremely grave" condition after a second major operation today, but the nature of her injuries was not made public.

The plane returned to Tel Aviv with only the crew aboard. The pilot remained hospitalized in Munich.

Two Arab guerrilla organizations with headquarters in Amman, Jordan, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and the Action Organization for the Liberation of Palestine, claimed credit for the attack. The Popular Front has made a specialty of attacking planes and offices of Israel's El Al Airline.

It was the fifth Arab attack on El Al in 30 months. The El Al airliner had stopped in Munich during a flight from Tel Aviv to London and the passengers and crew were preparing to return from the terminal to the aircraft.

The Arab terrorists, armed with pistols, blocked the path of the pilot and flight engineer as they walked from the departure lounge to an airport transit bus. The Arabs apparently threw grenades both into the bus and into the terminal, then traded shots with police.

During 1969 a quarter-billion dollars of industrial expansion was announced along the Norfolk and Western Railway in Ohio, C. A. Thoma, N and W's vice president-Lake Region, said today.

This includes rail facilities to Circleville's new RCA glass tube plant.

Preliminary figures compiled by the railroad's industrial development department show that 46 companies announced plans for new plants or major expansions, representing total investment of approximately $240,000,000.

Also included were sizable installations in steel, automotive parts, appliances, rubber, glass, electronics, agricultural products, chemicals and food distribution.

In its industrial development activity, N and W works closely with state and local governments, chamber of commerce, other community groups, banks and utilities.

The growth last year occurred in 29 different communities and should create 8,000 additional industrial jobs in the state.

Industrial growth brings with it, on the average, 1.3 service and related jobs for each industrial job. Considering all of these new wage-earners and their families, this development is equivalent to creating a new city in Ohio with population equal to Findlay or Portsmouth.

"Norfolk and Western expects industrial growth in Ohio to continue," Mr. Thoma said. "During the next 10 years we believe that Ohio's population will increase 35 per cent and its production capacity and consumer markets will grow at least one-third."

Prepared for the future, Norfolk and Western has assembled an inventory of industrial sites along its line in Ohio totaling about 4,500 acres, including sites near Akron, Medina, Canton, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Massillon, Montpelier, Portsmouth, Sandusky and Toledo.

Rhodes, Taft Trade Barbs As Political War Heats Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The two Republican candidates for Ohio's U.S. Senate seat traded charges Tuesday, while a Democratic senatorial candidate continued to criticize the Nixon administration.

Rep. Robert Taft Jr. told newsmen his opponent, Gov. James A. Rhodes, "has seldom taken a position on any subject." He said Rhodes had "backed out" of a face-to-face debate during the primary campaign.

Taft was replying to a statement Rhodes made at a news conference earlier in the day in which he accused the Cincinnati Congressman of scuttling the debate.

Rhodes said he wanted a "true debate," while Taft wanted to set up a town-forum type of format. He said Taft's "indecision destroyed the value of debate in this campaign."

Taft insisted he had agreed to Rhodes' proposal for a face-to-face debate early last December. He said he suggested only that an additional half-hour of free television time be made available for newsmen or the listening audience.

He added — apparently with tongue in cheek — that he was willing to let the governor select a substitute to do his debating and let Rhodes eliminate any topic he doesn't want to debate.

Meanwhile, Howard Metzenbaum, a Cleveland businessman-attorney who is seeking the Democratic senatorial nomination, said President Nixon's proposed consumer protection program is a "charade."

He told a Democratic gathering in Mansfield that the proposed 1971 Consumer Affairs Department budget of $810,000 would amount to about one-third of a cent per person.

"This is another example of where the administration fails to put real money behind its glossy words," he said.

While Metzenbaum spoke in Mansfield, Gov. Rhodes told a Harrison County Lincoln Day dinner in Freeport that the Nixon administration is trying to House-Senate Committee on the Environment.

Aware that Nixon may be stealing their thunder, the Democrats, including some considered possible presidential aspirants in 1972, are fighting back, branding the Nixon program—"a ruse," "a charade," and "just plain bull."

One of these is Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the Democrat's 1968 vice presidential candidate, who quickly branded the Nixon program "slogan-rich and action poor" and his 1971 environmental budget request as a step back.

And Muskie asserted that many of the President's Tuesday proposals are similar to those he made last month.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, who proposed a constitutional amendment to guarantee a clean environment as a right of the people, said the nation needs "more than a few million dollars here, a new commission there, or proclamations of concern."

Sen. William Proxmire, also of Wisconsin, included in some dark-horized presidential lists, criticized the administration for what he said is its late discovery of the issue.

He said that since the beginning of the Nixon administration there have been far more meetings of the National Security Council and the Urban Affairs Council than the environmental group.

But Nixon administration officials deny belittling.

"For the President, the problem was one of choosing priorities," Herb Klein said the president's communications director. "We couldn't get it on any significant scale during the first year of the administration because of the need to revamp existing programs. There was not the time to develop programs and analyze techniques and scientific capabilities."

"But now we are in the second phase," he said. "Simply making that is the need to build the country better in the decades ahead."

But Democrats indicate Nixon's new interest is a reflection of the population.

"permissive" and would give city transit systems "something to fall back on if they run into trouble."

A bill, introduced in the House Tuesday by State Rep. Norman A. Murdock, R-70 Cincinnati, would force municipalities to share with counties and townships income taxes collected from non-residents.

The bill would end the present policy that allows cities to keep all taxes collected from people working within the corporation limits, but living outside the city. Murdock's bill would let the cities retain 50 per cent of the taxes, give 30 per cent to the county where the worker is a resident and give 20 per cent to the township.

The House Tuesday passed 84-0 and sent to the Senate a bill that would provide a minimum of $1 per capita in aid the state gives to county health centers. Mrs. Ethel Swanbeck, R-14 Huron, sponsored the bill that would have the state provide 75 per cent and the counties provide 25 per cent.

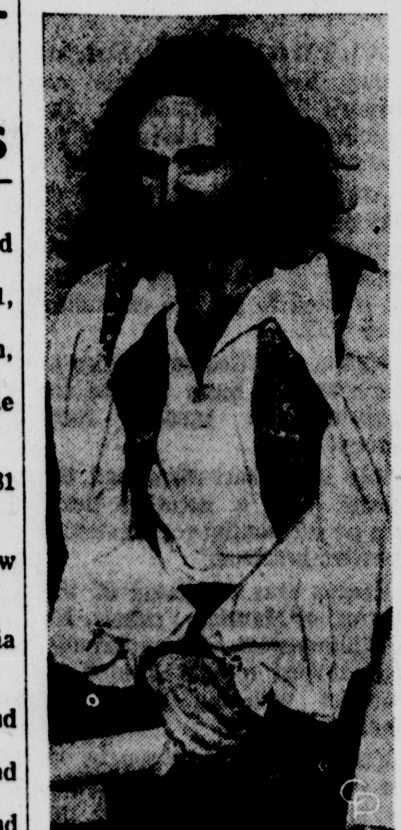

The House also passed 55-33 a bill that includes foxes as bearing animals protected under Ohio law. The bill is intended to prevent year-round hunting of the fox.

State Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, introduced a resolution that asks the Senate to denounce the "destructive minority" of college students involved in campus disorders.

The resolution also supports the arrest, prosecution and expulsion of students engaged in disruption. Mottl said "a disorderly minority must not be permitted to interfere with education of the responsible majority."

State Rep. Troy L. James, D-46 Cleveland, was elected Democratic Whip Tuesday to replace William F. Bowen, D-69 Cincinnati, who resigned his House seat Tuesday.

Bowen is expected to be sworn in as a Senate member Wednesday to replace State Sen. Calvin Johnson, D-9 Cincinnati, who resigned Monday. Edward B. Burden, a Cincinnati real estate agent was sworn in as Bowen's replacement. Both Burden and Bowen are campaigning for election to their new posts.

Kennan Urges U.S. Cutback Overseas

GRANVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Former diplomat George F. Kennan says America must curtail its commitments abroad if it is to solve a "profound" social crisis at home.

The former ambassador to the Soviet Union delivered one of the Owens-Corning lectures at Denison University Tuesday night.

He said solution of the problems of crime, inflation, racial injustice, urban deterioration and alienation of youth will require a major adjustment of our society.

He called for a streamlining of this country's policies "designed to put us in a position where we can concentrate on the problem areas that are really important and stop wasting effort on the ones that are not."

This process, Kennan said, has got to start with Vietnam. "I am convinced that our part in this struggle has got to stop, and the sooner the better."

Some day, after America has out its own house in order, it once again may find a useful role in the world, he said. But for now, Kennan added, "we must go over to the low key and mind our own interests."

Police Question 4 Arabs In Attack On Israeli Plane

MUNICH (AP) — Munich police today questioned four Arabs arrested after a grenade attack in the Munich airport on passengers of an Israeli airliner.

Three of the Arabs were wounded during the attack Tuesday and the fourth was arrested by police who cordoned off the airport to search for accomplices.

Munich Police Chief Hermann Schreiber said officials were trying to determine the motive for the attack. He said police "cannot rule out" the possibility that the target was Assaf Dayan, 24-year-old actor son of Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and a passenger on the plane. But the police added that as yet there was no firm evidence to support that theory.

Young Davan was not hurt. He was at a Munich hotel today under police guard, but police would not say which hotel.

The attack killed one passenger and wounded eleven other persons, including the three attackers, the plane's pilot and flight engineer, a policeman and two British passengers.

MR. WILLIAM D. WHALEY
Mr. William David Whaley, 60, of Route 2, Williamsport, was found dead in his car early Wednesday morning on Route 22, east of Circleville.

Born May 17, 1909 in Ross County, he was the son of Edward and Anna Reisinger Whaley.

He is survived by his widow, Florence Wilson Whaley; two sons, Kenneth E., Route 1, Stoutsville; Robert W., Route 2, Williamsport; daughters Mrs. Ted Mogan, Miss Dorothy Whaley, Nita and Vicki Whaley, all of Route 2, Williamsport; Mrs. Donald Purcell, 311 E. Funeral arrangements are being completed by Defenbaugh Funeral Home.

Israeli officials said the dead passenger was Arieh Katzenstein, 32, of Haifa. His father, Heinz, 57, was among the six passengers injured.

One of Israel's leading actresses, Hanna Meron, was the most seriously injured person. She was reported in "extremely grave" condition after a second major operation today, but the nature of her injuries was not made public.

The plane returned to Tel Aviv with only the crew aboard. The pilot remained hospitalized in Munich.

Two Arab guerrilla organizations with headquarters in Amman, Jordan, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and the Action Organization for the Liberation of Palestine, claimed credit for the attack. The Popular Front has made a specialty of attacking planes and offices of Israel's El Al Airline.

It was the fifth Arab attack on El Al in 30 months.

The El Al airliner had stopped in Munich during a flight from Tel Aviv to London and the passengers and crew were preparing to return from the terminal to the aircraft.

The Arab terrorists, armed with pistols, blocked the path of the pilot and flight engineer as they walked from the departure lounge to an airport transit bus. The Arabs apparently threw grenades both into the bus and into the terminal, then traded shots with police.

N&W Railway Notes Growth

During 1969 a quarter-billion dollars of industrial expansion was announced along the Norfolk and Western Railway in Ohio, C. A. Thoma, N and W's vice president-Lake Region, said today.

This includes rail facilities to Circleville's new RCA glass tube plant.

Preliminary figures compiled by the railroad's industrial development department show that 46 companies announced plans for new plants or major expansions, representing total investment of approximately $240,000,000.

Also included were sizable installations in steel, automotive parts, appliances, rubber, glass, electronics, agricultural products, chemicals and food distribution.

In its industrial development activity, N and W works closely with state and local governments, chamber of commerce, other community groups, banks and utilities.

The growth last year occurred in 29 different communities and should create 8,000 additional industrial jobs in the state.

Industrial growth brings with it, on the average, 1.3 service and related job for each industrial job. Considering all of these new wage-earners and their families, this development is equivalent to creating a new city in Ohio with population equal to Findlay or Portsmouth.

"Norfolk and Western expects industrial growth in Ohio to continue," Mr. Thoma said. "During the next 10 years we believe that Ohio's population will increase 35 per cent and its production capacity and consumer markets will grow at least one-third."

Prepared for the future, Norfolk and Western has assembled an inventory of industrial sites along its line in Ohio totaling about 4,500 acres, including sites near Akron, Medina, Canton, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Massillon, Montpelier, Portsmouth, Sandusky and Toledo.

Rhodes, Taft Trade Barbs As Political War Heats Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The two Republican candidates for Ohio's U.S. Senate seat traded charges Tuesday, while a Democratic senatorial candidate continued to criticize the Nixon administration.

Rep. Robert Taft Jr. told newsmen his opponent, Gov. James A. Rhodes, "has seldom taken a position on any subject." He said Rhodes had "backed out" of a face-to-face debate during the primary campaign.

Taft was replying to a statement Rhodes made at a news conference earlier in the day in which he accused the Cincinnati Congressman of scuttling the debate.

Rhodes said he wanted a "true debate," while Taft wanted to set up a town-forum type of format. He said Taft's "indecision destroyed the value of debate in this campaign."

Taft insisted he had agreed to Rhodes' proposal for a face-to-face debate early last December. He said he suggested only that an additional half-hour of free television time be made available for newsmen or the listening audience.

He added — apparently with tongue in cheek — that he was willing to let the governor select a substitute to do his debating and let Rhodes eliminate any topic he doesn't want to debate.

Meanwhile, Howard Metzger, a Cleveland businessman-attorney who is seeking the Democratic senatorial nomination, said President Nixon's proposed consumer protection program is a "charade."

He told a Democratic gathering in Mansfield that the proposed 1971 Consumer Affairs Department budget of $810,000 would amount to about one-third of a cent per person.

"This is another example of where the administration fails to put real money behind its glossy words," he said.

While Metzger spoke in Mansfield, Gov. Rhodes told a Harrison County Lincoln Day dinner in Freeport that the Nixon administration is trying to eliminate waste in government, "and we are working with him."

"I know from our experience at the state level that economy in government is possible if you work at it," Rhodes said. He estimated that reorganization of major federal programs could save taxpayers $3 billion to $5 billion a year.

Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown, a Republican candidate for governor, said in Lima Tuesday night police should have the authority to use wire-tapping in all cases where the public interest is involved.

Speaking to the Fraternal Order of Police, Brown said he thinks legal wire-tap evidence would be particularly helpful in cutting down crimes involving organized racketeering and illicit drug traffic.

A graduate of Ohio Dominican College, she holds a bachelor degree in education. In addition to her teaching she is studying for a masters degree at Miami University. Mrs. Hawk is also a member of the Ohio Education Assn., the Talwanda PTA, SWOE, and is active in civic and church affairs.

She is married to Jeffery L. Hawk, faculty member and director of Miami's Speakers Bureau. Mrs. Hawk is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schuer, 218 Brinks Drive and the daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Hawk, Chillicothe.

The couple resides at 315 North Campus Ave., Oxford.

Beaching The Savannah

Ten years ago the NS Savannah was hailed as the pioneer of things to come in the maritime world. The world's first nuclear-powered merchant ship, the Savannah was promoted as the forerunner of a new concept in shipping which would enable the United States to regain its lost image in commercial shipping.

Now the Savannah is headed for retirement. That is the intention of the Maritime Administration, which has budgeted half the usual $3.4 million appropriations for the ship for the next year, and that sum to be used for beaching the ship.

Officials of the First Atomic Ship Transport, a subsidiary of American Export Isbrandtsen Line which operates the ship under a government charter, vow they will attempt to keep the ship on the seas.

But the problem with the Savannah is that she has never lived up to expectations economically, although performing to near-perfection in her 25 commercial voyages.

No other atomic-powered merchantmen have been built by the U. S. since the Savannah. It is possible she was simply ahead of her time. But that time now appears to be in the distant future.

Nixon Is A 'High Square'

In terms of their respective tastes in arts and entertainment, our last three Presidents have, as they say, run the gamut. John F. Kennedy was avant garde—or at least he deferred to his wife Jackie, whose enthusiasms ran to anything that happened to be high fashion at the moment in the New York City intellectual world. Lyndon Johnson on might best be characterized as "low square": he let Lady Bird decide his canons of beauty when it came to such utilitarian things as the environment, and he had no ascertainable opinions about more esoteric artistic matters such as the state of the American novel, or trends in painting and music. Richard Nixon stands somewhere between JFK and LBJ: he is definitely a "high square."

Conceivably Lyndon Johnson, as a "low square," was more representative of the majority than either avant gardist Kennedy or "high square" Nixon. But the trouble with being a low square is that, having no firm opinions about anything artistic, you can be suckered. John Kennedy was safe in his dealings with artists because he came from the world that regards them as delightful but rather frivolous adornments to life, to be taken up or dropped at one's pleasure. But LBJ, feeling out of his element in the company of artists, deferred to critics who could impose their expertise on him.

So, when the idea of holding a White House "arts festival" was broached, Johnson let JFK holdovers decide the proper list of participants for him. The invitations went out to Pulitzer Prize winners, to members of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, to eastern Establishment intellectuals who have little use for the tastes or opinions of any Texas rancher. It is quite conceivable that Lyndon Johnson had never heard of poet Robert Lowell until that particular scion of the Boston Brahmin Lowells proceeded to insult the President by refusing to read from his works at the White House. And LBJ couldn't have known much about novelists John Hersey and Saul Bellow, who, although they accepted the White House invitation, took the opportunity to slam the Administration's foreign policy.

Lyndon's troubles with the art world came from his profound ignorance of the cultural folkways of Manhattan Island where, if you know something about poetry or music, you are supposed to be, ipso facto, an authority on the foreign policy of Bismarck or the state of nuclear development in Soviet Russia. In New York if your name is Susan Sontag or Mary McCarthy, you are entitled to look down on the diplomatic expertise of a mere former Secretary of State such as Dean Acheson. Lyndon couldn't have known this because he had never had any experience with New York. So he led with his chin, and the Robert Lowells and the Norman Mailers and the Dwight MacDonalds of the avant garde world all took hefty pokes at him.

The "high square" that is Richard Nixon, who lived for a time in Manhattan yet kept his distance from Norman Mailer's circles, will never be suckered as his predecessor was. This "high square" has tastes that are definitely his own but will never get him into trouble. The "silent majority" includes millions who are too busy making livings and raising children to pay much attention to the more esoteric arts. But "everybody" knows that Bob Hope and Red Skelton are great entertainers, and good patriots, too. So, when Nixon brings Bob and Red to the White House on separate occasions, he is not only being himself but also tuning in with the person whom the founder and first editor of the New Yorker once superciliously referred to as the old lady from Dubuque. And when Nixon proposes to hold a dinner and exhibition for a conventional (but nevertheless authentic and talented) painter such as Andrew Wyeth, he is again right on the beam. The fact that Wyeth and the President have corresponded "on matters other than art" is rather beside the point: Wyeth shows by his paintings that he is a man of solid virtues whom any good citizen would be bound to respect.

Nixon won't win any accolades below Fourteenth Street in Manhattan or in the East Seventies between Park and Madison Avenues as a patron of the arts. But how many votes does Susan Sontag (who she?) represent? Ask Nixon, he knows that Susan, though she is an interesting critic, is, vote-wise, a minority of one.

Dear Editor:
I am sure I may speak for all the citizens of this community. We are proud to have such people as the men who worked in constructing such a fine fire house in Pickaway Twp.

Anything worth having, one must pay the price. And the price is always worth, patience, love, self-sacrifice — no paper currency, no promise of pay — only the gold they receive of real service. That is all these men have.

With great admiration and gratitude I dedicate this to them and say:

It is a job well done, for it took a little courage and a little self-control, a lot of determination if they were to reach the goal. It took a bit of striving and a don't know when to quit, a little true ambition with a whole lot of wit. It's not the biggest things that count and make the biggest show. It's the little things that people do that make this world go.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE OWNER of the old St. Louis Browns baseball team once hired a hypnotist in the hope he could con the boys into winning a game now and then.

The first player who engaged the hypnotist's attention was a promising young pitcher who complained continuously of a sore arm.

"It's all in your head," the hypnotist assured him, then put him to sleep and ordered him to raise and lower his arm for ten solid minutes.

"When you awake," he promised, "the nerves in your arm will be ironed out and all the pain and soreness will have disappeared."

He then roused the pitcher and asked, "Well, how does that old right arm feel now?"

"Fine," replied the boy, "but I'm a lefty."

A scandalously fat lady became convinced that the reason she kept gaining weight was a faulty metabolism, and accordingly went to a clinic for a complete check-up. After a series of elaborate tests, the head of the clinic assured her, "You are in perfect health, madam. The only thing you are suffering from is an over-active fork."

The eminent British playwright Noel Coward, just turned 70 and recently knighted, was asked if he had any advice for would-be Thespians. His reply: "Speak clearly—and do not bump into people."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Is it common for children who have been in perfect health to come down with infections as soon as they go to nursery school? Both of our children, twins, seem to catch some new infection every few weeks.

Mrs. A. G., New York
Dear Mrs. G.: Yours is not an unusual story. Most mothers have had the same experience, some earlier and some later.

Undoubtedly, the onset of acute colds and infections in children who have enjoyed excellent health can be attributed to the fact that they are exposed to new germs that other children may harbor. Similarly, it may well be that your children bring to their classmates germs that they had not been exposed to, before being in contact with your twins.

It is not discouraging to parents to find that their children are out of school so often. From a long vantage point there may be some good in this, because your children will be developing resistance, and possible immunity to the new germs. It might be of value to consult with your doctor about the possibility that your children may be moderately deficient in gamma-globulin, the protective substance against infection. Even if there is no deficiency, your doctor may suggest gamma-globulin boosters during this early period of contact and exposure to the germs of other children.

What is the advantage of taking fluid in large amounts when the patient has a high fever with a cold? My mother forces fluid on me until I'm ready to burst.

Miss K.K.G., New Mexico
Dear Miss G.: During periods of high fever a great deal of fluid is lost by evaporation when the body perspires. This fluid must be replenished to avoid a chemical imbalance which can be far more distressing than the disease itself. Acidosis can and does occur, especially in children, who may refuse to take fluids. Most patients do not feel like eating during illness, especially when a fever is high. Fluids that contain a moderate amount of sugar and fruit juices are an excellent way of providing nourishment until the appetite returns.

Small sips of any fluid at regular intervals is far better than large amounts at a single time. The idea that infection can be "flushed away" with tremendous amounts of fluid has no scientific validity. Mothers have been, are, and will always be over-solicitous. Allow yours to be. It will come as a surprise when you, too, will lovingly do the same thing to your own child.

What is the safest way to keep skin scrapes from becoming infected? In a busy household, this happens every day to the children.

Mrs. J.W., Ohio
Dear Mrs. W.: Scraped skin is known as an abrasion. The outer layer of the skin is injured and peeled off. Only rarely does infection occur. By gently washing the area with soap and water, small foreign bodies can be kept from imbedding themselves in the skin. There is no need to use colored antiseptics, but they serve an advantage to soothe the teary eyes of the youngster.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNNEIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — In almost every medium- or large-size city in America it costs at least $500 a month for a retired couple to live moderately well. Top Social Security benefits, however, amount to only $285 a month.

Despite the 15 per cent boost in benefits this year, therefore, a couple who relied solely on Social Security would be in serious financial straits and very likely a candidate for welfare.

The situation is revealed clearly by scanning the Labor Department's moderate retirement budgets which show monthly living costs of $600 in Boston, $527 in Indianapolis, $496 in Dallas and $545 in San Francisco.

Since these budgets were published in 1967, living expenses have risen by 12 per cent, but Medicare has taken over much of the medical expenses of the elderly, so the two factors tend to offset each other.

The discrepancy between benefits and needs is not the result of oversight or error on the part of the federal government, of course. The simple explanation is that Social Security is a supplement rather than a complete pension.

Nevertheless, a good many people may be lulled into a false sense of security because they feel a government that estimates the needs of a retired couple at one figure wouldn't offer benefits one-half the size.

As one critic views the situation, "Social Security benefits flunk the government test of retirement living." That is the headline of a report being sent to insurance firms by the Institute for Business Planning.

The institute, a research and advisory service, is reminding insurance salesmen that profits await them in notifying middle-age couples of their retirement needs, helping them set financial goals, and then selling them cash value insurance or annuities to achieve these goals.

While asserting that the present Social Security benefits are a good base for retirement, IDP states that a lot of people have a mistaken notion about the real size of their benefits, a misunderstanding it blames on publicists.

Every time Social Security benefits are raised, it states, congressional and social security public relations specialists publish tables spotlighting the top benefit for someone with maximum coverage.

That top benefit for a retired worker, after the latest increase, was listed at $250.70 a month.

"But these publicists," it continues, "are not apt to tell the public that the top benefit is not for the here and now but may be attainable only by someone who is now about 30 or 35 years old."

It explains: Tables showing maximum benefits are based on an average monthly wage of $650 a month in the years before 1968.

"Therefore, no one who retires at age 65 during the next 30 years or so will have an average monthly covered wage of $650 (unless Congress increases the wage basis in the future...)"

In any event, it continues, "a person retiring at age 65 in 1970 will probably have an average monthly wage of $450 or less and will probably receive a retirement benefit of $190 or less for himself and $95 or less for his wife."

Even if Social Security is supplemented by proceeds from a company pension plan, the net income still might be considerably short of a comfortable living standard, IDP reminds insurers. And therein lies the opening for insurance salesmen.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Rare indeed is the fellow who marries a girl to reform her. But whether reform was his goal or not, many a husband finds out that nothing changes a girl like marriage.

At first she delighted in meeting him at the door with his slippers in her hand when he came home from work. Now if he can't find her own slippers, she slap-slaps around the house in his.

Before the wedding she ate so little he was afraid she'd starve to death, and he'd tell her solicitously, "You just can't live on love alone." Now she eats so much that the refrigerator winces every time she approaches it, and when he upbraids her for her appetite she reminds him, "You don't expect me to live on love alone, do you?"

Once he was proud of her because she was the snappiest dresser in the neighborhood. But now she comes to breakfast each morning looking so frowsy he half expects her to fly into the room on a broomstick.

During their courtship days, he remembers they loved to go on picnics and pick four-leaf clovers together. But lately, he reflects, all she seems interested in picking with him is arguments.

There was a time when she praised his short, crew-cut hair because she said it made him look so manly. Now that he's getting bald—and therefore looks even more manly—she wants him to buy a toupee that would make him look like an aging sheepdog.

She used to be interested even in his daydreams, and when he fell into a reverie, she'd say, "A penny for your thoughts, my darling." But today if he starts to tell her what's on his mind, she remarks cuttingly, "What have you got to shout about?"

Before he led her to the altar she assured him that there was nothing more she wanted from life than to live alone with him in an ivory tower of their own. But how many months passed before she started complaining about their little nest for two. "This isn't an apartment—it's a jail!" Not many.

Then she was passionately happy if he brought her nothing but a single red rose. Now she is likely to demand a written explanation if he fails to bring her his full paycheck in his mouth —unchashed.

In the old days, when she invited him to a home-cooked dinner in her apartment, she told him with pretended sternness, "You go into the living room. You know very well no woman likes a man underfoot in her kitchen." But what happens to

"Fine," replied the boy, "but I'm a lefty."

A scandalously fat lady became convinced that the reason she kept gaining weight was a faulty metabolism, and accordingly went to a clinic for a complete check-up. After a series of elaborate tests, the head of the clinic assured her, "You are in perfect health, madam. The only thing you are suffering from is an over-active fork."

The eminent British playwright Noel Coward, just turned 70 and recently knighted, was asked if he had any advice for would-be Thespians. His reply: "Speak clearly—and do not bump into people."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Is it common for children who have been in perfect health to come down with infections as soon as they go to nursery school? Both of our children, twins, seem to catch some new infection every few weeks.

Mrs. A. G. New York
Dear Mrs. G.: Yours is not an unusual story. Most mothers have had the same experience, some earlier and some later.

Undoubtedly, the onset of acute colds and infections in children who have enjoyed excellent health can be attributed to the fact that they are exposed to new germs that other children may harbor. Similarly, it may well be that your children bring to their classrooms germs that they had not been exposed to, before being in contact with your twins.

It is not discouraging to parents to find that their children are out of school so often. From a long vantage point there may be some good in this, because your children will be developing resistance, and possibly immunity, to the new germs. It might be of value to consult with your doctor about the possibility that your children may be moderately deficient in gamma-globulin, the protective substance against infection. Even if there is no deficiency, your doctor may suggest gamma-globulin boosters during this early period of contact and exposure to the germs of other children.

What is the advantage of taking fluid in large amounts when the patient has a high fever with a cold? My mother forces fluid on me until I'm ready to burst.

Miss K.K.G., New Mexico
Dear Miss G.: During periods of high fever a great deal of fluid is lost by evaporation when the body perspires. This fluid must be replenished to avoid a chemical imbalance which can be far more distressing than the disease itself. Acidosis can and does occur, especially in children, who may refuse to take fluids. Most patients do not feel like eating during illness, especially when a fever is high. Fluids that contain a moderate amount of sugar and fruit juices are an excellent way of providing nourishment until the appetite returns.

Small sips of any fluid at regular intervals is far better than large amounts at a single time. The idea that infection can be "flushed away" with tremendous amounts of fluid has no scientific validity. Mothers have been, are, and will always be over-solicitous. Allow yours to be. It will come as a surprise when you, too, will lovingly do the same thing to your own child.

What is the safest way to keep skin scrapes from becoming infected? In a busy household, this happens every day to the children.

Mrs. J.W., Ohio
Dear Mrs. W.: Scraped skin is known as an abrasion. The outer layer of the skin is injured and peeled off. Only rarely does infection occur. By gently washing the area with soap and water, small foreign bodies can be kept from imbedding themselves in the skin. There is no need to use colored antiseptics, but they serve an advantage to soothe the teary eyes of the youngster.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — In almost every medium- or large-size city in America it costs at least $500 a month for a retired couple to live moderately well. Top Social Security benefits, however, amount to only $285 a month.

Despite the 15 per cent boost in benefits this year, therefore, a couple who relied solely on Social Security would be in serious financial straits and very likely a candidate for welfare.

The situation is revealed clearly by scanning the Labor Department's moderate retirement budgets which show monthly living costs of $600 in Boston, $527 in Indianapolis, $496 in Dallas and $545 in San Francisco.

Since these budgets were published in 1967, living expenses have risen by 12 per cent, but Medicare has taken over much of the medical expenses of the elderly, so the two factors tend to offset each other.

The discrepancy between benefits and needs is not the result of oversight or error on the part of the federal government, of course. The simple explanation is that Social Security is a supplement rather than a complete pension.

Nevertheless, a good many people may be lulled into a false sense of security because they feel a government that estimates the needs of a retired couple at one figure wouldn't offer benefits one-half the size.

As one critic views the situation, "Social Security benefits flunk the government test of retirement living." That is the headline of a report being sent to insurance firms by the Institute for Business Planning.

The institute, a research and advisory service, is reminding insurance salesmen that profits await them in notifying middle-aged couples of their retirement needs, helping them set financial goals, and then selling them

cash value insurance or annuities to achieve these goals.

While asserting that the present Social Security benefits are a good base for retirement, IDP states that a lot of people have a mistaken notion about the real size of their benefits, a misunderstanding it blames on publicists.

Every time Social Security benefits are raised, it states, congressional and social security public relations specialists publish tables spotlighting the top benefit for someone with maximum coverage.

That top benefit for a retired worker, after the latest increase, was listed at $250.70 a month.

"But these publicists," it continues, "are not apt to tell the public that the top benefit is not for the here and now but may be attainable only by someone who is now about 30 or 35 years old."

It explains: Tables showing maximum benefits are based on an average monthly wage of $650 a month in the years before 1968.

"Therefore, no one who retires at age 65 during the next 30 years or so will have an average monthly covered wage of $650 (unless Congress increases the wage basis in the future...)"

In any event, it continues, "a person retiring at age 65 in 1970 will probably have an average monthly wage of $450 or less and will probably receive a retirement benefit of $190 or less for himself and $95 or less for his wife."

Even if Social Security is supplemented by proceeds from a company pension plan, the net income still might be considerably short of a comfortable living standard, IBP reminds insurers. And therein lies the opening for insurance salesmen.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Rare indeed is the fellow who marries a girl to reform her. But whether reform was his goal or not, many a husband finds out that nothing changes a girl like marriage.

At first she delighted in meeting him at the door with his slippers in her hand when he came home from work. Now if she can't find her own slippers, she slaps slaps around the house in his.

Before the wedding she ate so little he was afraid she'd starve to death, and he'd tell her solicitously, "You just can't live on love alone." Now she eats so much that the refrigerator wince every time she approaches it, and when he upbraids her for her appetite she reminds him, "You don't expect me to live on love alone, do you?"

Once he was proud of her because she was the snappiest dresser in the neighborhood. But now she comes to breakfast each morning looking so frowsy he half expects her to fly into the room on a broomstick.

During their courtship days, he remembers they loved to go on picnics and pick four-leaf clovers together. But lately, he reflects, all she seems interested in picking with him is arguments.

There was a time when she praised his short, crew-cut hair because she said it made him look so manly. Now that he's getting bald—and therefore looks even more manly—she wants him to buy a toupee that would make him look like an aging sheeplod.

She used to be interested even in his daydreams, and when he fell into a reverie, she'd say, "A penny for your thoughts, my darling." But today if he starts to tell her what's on his mind, she remarks cuttingly, "What have you got to shout about?"

Before he led her to the altar she assured him that there was nothing more she wanted from life than to live alone with him in an ivory tower of their own. But how many months passed before she started complaining about their little nest for two.

"This isn't an apartment—it's a jail!" Not many.

Then she was passionately happy if he brought her nothing but a single red rose. Now she is likely to demand a written explanation if he fails to bring her his full paycheck in his mouth—unashed.

In the old days, when she invited him to a home-cooked dinner in her apartment, she told him with pretended sternness, "You go into the living room. You know very well no woman likes a man underfoot in her kitchen." But what happens to day if he asks her for even a sandwich? Flopping down on the sofa, she replies, "Go out to the kitchen and fix it yourself, butterfingers. And while you're there, you might as well fix one for me, too."

Now and then he wonders wistfully whatever happened to the dreamboat maiden of his courtship days. Nothing really happened to her. She simply married him and turned out to be just what she had been all along—a girl just like the girl who married his dear old dad.

A Lenten special offered by A & P included trifle meat, selling for 59 cents a pound. A medium head of lettuce sold for 9 cents and carrots were 8 cents a bunch. Rice, navy beans, flour and macaroni stretched the Lenten meal and did not require extra food stamps.

1945 brought the worst winter in years to Pickaway County, with heavy snows and chilling temperatures. County Engineer Henry McCrady reported over $10,500 had been spent by mid-February for snow removal and ice control on county roads. Sand, cinders, salt were all used in record amounts to keep roads open.

State's Biggest Tree Grows In Pickaway County

A large sycamore tree on a Pickaway County farm has again been given recognition.

The tree, growing on the Foresman farm, south of South Bloomfield, was recognized by the South Central Ohio Preservation Society as the "biggest tree in the State of Ohio" and the "biggest sycamore tree in the United States."

George P. Foresman of 225 S. Court St., owner of the farm on which the tree is located, was presented with a certificate Saturday on the OU Chillicothe campus by the Preservation Society for "outstanding community betterment involving restoration and preservation" and "who supported the purposes of the society to discover, mark and publicize objects of natural and man-made historical interest in the south central region of Ohio to stimulate public and private interest in preserving and restoring such landmarks."

The tree was first brought to public attention in 1955 by Mrs. Lawrence Wright, whose husband then managed the Foresman farm. At that time, the Ohio Forestry Department sought information regarding trees of unusual size throughout the state.

THE sycamore, now judged to be between 150-200 years old, was never particularly noticed by any members of the Wright family except to consider its size. Because of its then gigantic proportions, Mrs. Wright alerted the forestry department to the Pickaway County rarity.

In 1965, according to a tree census, the sycamore measured 32 feet, 10 inches in circumference, was 80 feet high with a crown spread of 102 feet.

More recent measurements record the trees growth to 33 feet, six inches in circumference and 85 feet in height. It would take a normal arm span of six men to circle its girth.

The giant tree cannot be observed from the highway. It grows in Scioto River bottom land approximately one mile west of Route 23 and one and one-half miles south of South Bloomfield.

Despite its age and with only the care provided by nature, the tree remains in a good state of preservation, according to Foresman.

He is married to the former Brenda Cook, now residing at 1455 N. Court St.

'Papa Doc' Duvalier Eyes Tourism

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Papa Doc is playing his tune in a low key these days, and tourists are coming back to this poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere.

Papa Doc is formally known as Francois Duvalier, "president for life."

The political atmosphere has changed considerably from the early '60s when exiles from without and enemies from within threatened the dictatorial regime.

Then armed civilians, called "Tontons Macoute" in the Creole patois of Haiti, roamed the country, killing and beating up people at whim. These "bogeymen" ranged from street thugs to Cabinet ministers and were loyal to Duvalier.

They are rarely seen now, except when Papa Doc leaves the National Palace. Then several carloads follow him as bodyguards.

"There is definitely less use of terror than before," says one foreign diplomat. "Duvalier doesn't have much active opposition any more. They're dead, in exile or just quiet."

One of the best known accounts of happenings in Haiti is the novel "The Comedians," by Graham Greene. He wrote about a hotel owner in Port au Prince and his experiences with government spies, blood-thirsty Tontons macoute and weird voodoo rites.

"Everything that was in 'The Comedians' was true in 1963," says an American resident, "but not any longer."

However, Papa Doc is not taken lightly. He has the last word over everything the government does. He could, if he chose, unleash the same types of violence that the country experienced in previous years.

Duvalier seems to be making a determined effort to attract more tourists because they bring foreign exchange and create new jobs.

The average per capita income is $70 a year. The illiteracy rate is 90 per cent. Most of the farming is done at a subsistence level. Only about 100,000 of the country's estimated 3.7 million residents are said to be employed in regular jobs.

Rumors of imminent invasions by Haitian exiles in the Dominican Republic, which shares the island of Hispaniola, circulate frequently.

"An ant walks down the steps of the National Palace and a block away it becomes an elephant," says one diplomat of the rumormongering.

Despite the occasional scare or exaggerated report, the government says it issued 16,142 tourist cards in 1969, twice as many as two or three years ago. At times some hotels report full bookings, once a rare thing.

Many visitors have been attracted by Greene's novel, which had glimpses of the Oloffson hotel, a rambling, white

Victorian structure. People are always looking for mystery and intrigue there.

Owner Al Seitz, a native of Hartford, Conn., has lived in Haiti 21 years. He recalls a reporter who wrote that everybody at the hotel was a spy.

"Naturally, I immediately questioned the staff," Seitz says. "I found out that he had discovered the maids and the cleaning man reading the contents of the wastebasket in his room. They were laughing and looking at a brochure describing female foundation garments which his wife had thrown there. They love to look at pictures of bras and girdles. They think they're hilarious. But he thought they were spies."

State's Biggest Tree Grows In Pickaway County

A large sycamore tree on a Pickaway County farm has again been given recognition.

The tree, growing on the Foresman farm, south of South Bloomfield, was recognized by the South Central Ohio Preservation Society as the "biggest tree in the State of Ohio" and the "biggest sycamore tree in the United States."

George P. Foresman of 225 S. Court St., owner of the farm on which the tree is located, was presented with a certificate Saturday on the OU Chillicothe campus by the Preservation Society for "outstanding community betterment involving restoration and preservation" and "who supported the purposes of the society to discover, mark and publicize objects of natural and man-made historical interest in the south central region."

as a truck driver in Company A, 1st Engineer Battalion of the division.

The presentation was made Dec. 15.

Army Private David Lloyd Cupp of Company E, 4th Battalion, 1st Brigade has scored "expert" with the M-14 rifle here. He achieved his "expert's badge" by hitting 60 or more targets out of a possible 84 while firing on the Training Center's Record Firing Range.

Private Cupp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Cupp of 580 Ridgewood Drive.

He is married to the former Brenda Cook, now residing at 1455 N. Court St.

ion of Ohio to stimulate public and private interest in preserving and restoring such landmarks."

The tree was first brought to public attention in 1955 by Mrs. Lawrence Wright, whose husband then managed the Foresman farm. At that time, the Ohio Forestry Department sought information regarding trees of unusual size throughout the state.

THE sycamore, now judged to be between 150-200 years old, was never particularly noticed by any members of the Wright family except to consider its size. Because of its then gigantic proportions, Mrs. Wright alerted the forestry department to the Pickaway County rarity.

In 1965, according to a tree census, the sycamore measured 32 feet, 10 inches in circumference, was 80 feet high with a crown spread of 102 feet.

More recent measurements record the trees growth to 33 feet, six inches in circumference and 85 feet in height. It would take a normal arm span of six men to circle its girth.

The giant tree cannot be observed from the highway. It grows in Scioto River bottom land approximately one mile west of Route 23 and one and one-half miles south of South Bloomfield.

Despite its age and with only the care provided by nature, the tree remains in a good state of preservation, according to Foresman.

'Papa Doc' Duvalier Eyes Tourism

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Papa Doc is playing his tune in a low key these days, and tourists are coming back to this poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere.

Papa Doc is formally known as Francois Duvalier, "president for life."

The political atmosphere has changed considerably from the early '60s when exiles from without and enemies from within threatened the dictatorial regime.

Then armed civilians, called "Tontons Macoute" in the Creole patois of Haiti, roamed the country, killing and beating up people at whim. These "bogymen" ranged from street thugs to Cabinet ministers and were loyal to Duvalier.

They are rarely seen now, except when Papa Doc leaves the National Palace. Then several carloads follow him as bodyguards.

"There is definitely less use of terror than before," says one foreign diplomat. "Duvalier doesn't have much active opposition any more. They're dead, in exile or just quiet."

One of the best known accounts of happenings in Haiti is the novel "The Comedians," by Graham Greene. He wrote about a hotel owner in Port au Prince and his experiences with government spies, blood-thirsty Tontons macoute and weird voodoo rites.

"Everything that was in 'The Comedians' was true in 1963," says an American resident, "but not any longer."

However, Papa Doc is not taken lightly. He has the last word over everything the government does. He could, if he chose, unleash the same types of violence that the country experienced in previous years.

Duvalier seems to be making a determined effort to attract more tourists because they bring foreign exchange and create new jobs.

The average per capita income is $70 a year. The illiteracy rate is 90 per cent. Most of the farming is done at a subsistence level. Only about 100,000 of the country's estimated 3.7 million residents are said to be employed in regular jobs.

Rumors of imminent invasions by Haitian exiles in the Dominican Republic, which shares the island of Hispaniola, circulate frequently.

"An ant walks down the steps of the National Palace and a block away it becomes an elephant," says one diplomat of the rumormongering.

Despite the occasional scare or exaggerated report, the government says it issued 16,142 tourist cards in 1969, twice as many as two or three years ago. At times some hotels report full bookings, once a rare thing.

Many visitors have been attracted by Greene's novel, which had glimpses of the Oloffson hotel, a rambling, white

Dime Sweepdown On Highway Ends

AUBURN, Mass. (AP) — The sweepdown of the Massachusetts Turnpike for 400,000 dimes has ended.

State police said they did not know how many were recovered by 25 maintenance men who used large vacuum cleaners and "mud suckers" to scoop up the coins Monday. Souvenir hunters were kept out of the area.

The dimes-in 40 money bags, each holding $1,000 were being hauled by Armored Motor Rental Transport Co. from the Denver mint to the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. State police said the floor fell out of the rented truck.

Victorian structure. People are always looking for mystery and intrigue there.

Owner Al Seitz, a native of Hartford, Conn., has lived in Haiti 21 years. He recalls a reporter who wrote that everybody at the hotel was a spy.

"Naturally, I immediately questioned the staff," Seitz says. "I found out that he had discovered the maids and the cleaning man reading the contents of the wastebasket in his room. They were laughing and looking at a brochure describing female foundation garments which his wife had thrown there. They love to look at pictures of bras and girdles. They think they're hilarious. But he thought they were spies."

Mayor Files Court Appeal Of Dismissal

RUSSELLS POINT, Ohio (AP)

—Lloyd Pickering, this commu-nity's former mayor who was ousted by court action, is filing an appeal against his dismissal with the Third District Court of Appeals in Lima.

Patrick Allen of Lima, Pick-ering's attorney, said the appeal is being made on grounds the de-cision to remove the mayor from office was against the weight of evidence presented in a hearing for the mayor last September.

Pickering's removal resulted from a decision last December by Lieudell Bauer, Shelby Coun-ty probate judge who heard the case by assignment.

The court found him guilty of misfeasance for his actions dur-ing a youthful disorder in this Indian Lake resort on the last July 4 weekend.

The judge ruled that Pickering violated his responsibility as chief law enforcement officer of the village by striking a youth with the butt of a shotgun and by firing between 100 and 120 shotgun shells on Main Street.

Five electors of the commu-nity brought charges of misfea-sance and malfeasance against the mayor.

COVERS LIKE CRAZY

Dutch Boy Nalplex® is the latex flat wall paint with the built-in second coat. So high in hiding, smooth in leveling, one coat looks like two.

Made for rollers, Nalplex doesn't spatter when you put it on, spreads smoothly, covers like crazy. When you've finished painting, clean up you and your tools with soap and water. Hundreds of colors to choose from, too.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Seven young Californians have sued to have the draft lottery last December declared unconstitutional. Their action filed Monday in U.S. District Court asks for a new lottery, a temporary restraining order against further inductions under the old one, and cancellation of all notices outstanding under it.

The petition charges the physical mixing of the capsules in the lottery did not result in "an equitable and impartial random selection sequence" in accordance with President Nixon's Nov. 26 proclamation. Filed with the suit was an affidavit by several statistics experts including three Stanford University professors, Charles Stein, Ingram Olkin and Bradley Efron, who said: "It is our opinion that the method employed ignores the advice of all standard statistical textbooks. It is common knowledge among reputable statisticians that it is difficult if not impossible to achieve a random sample by physical mixing, and that conclusion has led to development of tables of random numbers and random permutations. "The method of drawing the numbers could be expected beforehand to result in poor mixing of the numbers, and the analysis showed overwhelming evidence that biases did result and these biases did result in serious discrepancies in the selection of numbers." The suit was brought on behalf of all those who received numbers of 122 or less in the lottery and whose birthdays fall from September through December. It contends that the selection method resulted in bias which deprived the plaintiffs of due process of law under the Fifth Amendment. Named as defendants were the national Selective Service director, Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, and the California state director, Carlos C. Ogden. Judge George B. Harris said he would hear arguments Wednesday on the requested temporary restraining order.

More Witnesses Testify On Telephone Rate Boost

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eleven more witnesses were slated to appear before the Public Utilities Commission today in support of Ohio Bell Telephone Co.'s request for a rate increase.

The hearing was expected to proceed more rapidly today after PUCO Chairman Carl Johnson denied Tuesday a rehearing on procedural matters sought by attorneys for several intervening cities and businesses.

The company presented four witnesses Tuesday who confirmed that reports they compiled earlier in the case actually were their work and still are accurate.

The reports by William E.

MacDonald and Karl L. Liven- sparger, both company officials; Arthur R. Tebutt, a statistician at Northwestern University; and John D. Russell, a director of American Appraisal Co., Milwaukee, dealt generally with real estate, buildings and equipment owned by the company.

Ohio Bell is seeking increases of $1.30 to $1.85 a month for residential telephone service and $1.65 to $3.35 for monthly for a flat - rate business line. The adjustments would affect 47 cities and communities.

The company estimates the hikes would increase annual revenues by $80 million.

There were unconfirmed reports Tuesday that the company was ready to reduce its request by about $25 million.

R. L. Reed, an Ohio Bell assistant vice president, acknowledged that negotiations on the rate have been under way for some time with various interested parties.

But he denied knowledge of any agreement or of any specific amount of money being discussed.

"The company feels it needs a certain number of dollars to maintain its work and to expand," Reed said. "We don't want to have to come back in a year or so and ask for more money."

Ohio Bell's last rate increase was in 1959.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Wild River," CBS' National Geographic Society series entry Tuesday night combined an assortment of themes, all pleasant and interesting.

Basically the program was a filmed account of a trip down the Salmon River in Idaho by twin ecologists named Craighead and their children.

That portion of the hour was exciting, handsome and typical of the series—the Craigheads shot the rapids, scaled cliffs, banded the golden eagle. Then from time to time there were small excursions into other areas, all for the purpose of showing pollution of our waters—and also, perhaps, because there was not enough Salmon River film.

There were stunning shots of the majestic Hudson River and of the serene, blue Potomac. Then closeups of these rivers showed detergent foam floating like dirty meringues, raw sewage and industrial wastes pouring into the streams, dead fish.

Then too there were short excursions into American history. The film of the Hudson moved into a short history of West Point at the time of the American Revolution. The sight of a deserted miner's cabin stimulated a reminiscence of the days of the Western gold rush, both illustrated by pictures.

Another brief shifftail showed some of the Craighead clan in the Everglades, with comment about another area whose future is under constant threat.

Despite the general shapelessness of the hour as a television form and the high flown quality of the narrator's prose, it was a colorful and worthy effort although not up to the usual standard of his fine series.

Week in and week out, ABC's "Movie of the Week" presents one of the networks' most interesting series. It seems to be disproving the theory that TV anthologies don't work out these days: It is almost certain to be renewed for another season.

Some weeks, of course, are better than others, but the range is broad, the stars interesting and, usually, the ideas pretty good.

"The Challenge," Tuesday night's 90 minutes, was more interesting as an idea than in its execution. The premise was that two nations decided to settle their conflict, not by war, but by each side sending one man out for combat.

Darren McGavin played the man chosen to fight for the United States. The story was built around the preparations and, of course, the battle. Since this was American television and McGavin usually played good guys, it was not hard to figure out in advance which side would win.

Heavy Rain Hits Areas Of Northeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy rain soaked portions of the Northeast today and some inland areas remained under alert for heavy snows. More than 4 inches of rain poured onto Mt. Washington, N.H., before daybreak. Up to an inch was common from Rhode Island into New Hampshire.

New York City was drenched by nearly 2 1/2 inches through Tuesday and drizzle continued into the predawn hours.

A heavy-snow watch, with accumulations up to 6 inches possible, remained in effect for northeastern New York and northern Vermont. Warnings to travelers were out in northwestern Pennsylvania.

The storm dumped 10 inches of snow into some mountain areas of southeastern Pennsylvania Tuesday.

Winds accompanied the rain up the coast. Gusts near 50 miles an hour were recorded along the southern New England coast late Tuesday. Gale warnings remained in effect.

Light snow or flurries swirled over the Great Lakes and into the northern Appalachians.

Cold weather in the northern plains scattered 1 to 2 inches of snow across central North Dakota.

Showers dampened much of California and spilled into Arizona and southern Nevada.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 12 at Grand Forks, N.D., to 61 at Yuma and Phoenix, Ariz.

Construction Trade Target Of Administration Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is considering legislation to force building trades unions to accept new members, Postmaster General Winton M. Blount says.

Blount said the Cabinet Committee on Construction has been working for some time on such a proposal and added, "I would hope we can get something coming out soon in that regard."

The plan involves establishment of a federally financed program to train returning military veterans and possibly some civilians in building trades jobs, Blount said.

Those who successfully complete the training would receive certificates entitling them to union membership wherever they live, he said.

This system would bypass union apprenticeship programs that, in some cases, take years before workers advance to journeyman level.

Coming in the wake of controversy over the administration's Philadelphia Plan on minority hiring, the proposal almost certainly will rekindle the wrath of organized labor.

But Blount insisted in an interview it is necessary on two grounds: to deflate the trend toward "outrageous wage settlements that make it very difficult to get noninflationary settlements in other businesses" and to build a manpower bank to take care of the nation's construction needs.

Price Rises To Continue, Experts Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housewives shouldn't expect this year's can of beans to go back to last year's 30-cent price. In fact, they will be lucky if the price rises only to 45 cents by the end of the year.

Not very encouraging, perhaps, but that is in essence what the Nixon administration's top economic experts said, in more sophisticated terms, on Capitol Hill Monday.

"It would be unrealistic to project a halt in price increases during this year," said Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy in his formal testimony to the House Appropriations Committee.

"Our estimate, therefore, assumes a further rise in prices but at a slower rate than in 1969."

Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said:

"The objective of policy for the year 1970 is to find that path of moderate expansion in demand that will permit the rate of price increase to subside and at the same time will establish the basis for output to resume its growth."

At a news conference after the session, Kennedy was asked to say something for the benefit of the housewife who reads that various economic indicators show inflation slowing down, but still finds supermarket price tags going up.

There are always lags, Kennedy said, and as for supermarkets, their profit ratios are not usually considered high.

But, "this will come down as we move ahead, I am sure," he added. "I should expect a lower rate of increase."

McCracken said the council is looking into the increase in retail meat prices at a time when prices to the livestock producer are down.

Cloud Selects Group To Head Political Drive

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Auditor Roger Cloud announced today the Washington political advertising and consulting firm of Bailey, Deardourff and Bowen, Inc., has been hired to handle his campaign for governor.

"We are delighted to have a firm of the national stature of Bailey, Deardourff and Bowen to help in this campaign," Cloud said.

The firm is the successor company to Campaign Systems, Inc., which Douglas L. Bailey and John D. Deardourff operated for several years.

Bailey and Deardourff handled the political advertising and consulting for New Jersey Gov. William Cahill's successful campaign last year.

A member of the Cabinet committee, Blount denied the proposal is antiunion and said "management is just as much to blame as unions" for what he termed inflationary agreements.

"I have been very severe in my comments on management," said Blount, a millionaire contractor himself. "It takes two to make an agreement."

"But what you have is an unequal bargaining situation because of the mobility of construction workers. The economic pressure is only on the contractors who are pressed by completion deadlines."

Contending the nation's "demands for construction are almost staggering," Blount said a government plan to get more people to the building trades is imperative because surveys show three million homes will have to be built annually in the next few years.

"It's ridiculous to take more than six months to train a skilled construction worker," he declared, adding that under current union training programs "it takes four years to turn out a carpenter."

The proposed government training project now under discussion would graduate workers after about six months, he said.

"THE REAL ENEMY," says the Arabic daily newspaper Al Gomhouria in publishing this cartoon in Cairo. It's a sketch of you-know-who, with an eye patch like Israeli Minister Moshe Dayan's.

Rogers To Meet Selassie, Tito

TUNIS (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers flew from Tunisia to Ethiopia today for meetings with Emperor Haile Selassie and Yugoslav President Tito and a major policy speech to the Organization of African Unity.

The flight to the southeast took Rogers out of the Arab world, but the Arab-Israeli conflict was high on the agenda for his conference tonight with Tito.

The Yugoslav leader also is touring Africa, and Rogers requested the meeting about a week ago when he learned that the two of them by coincidence would be in Addis Ababa at the same time. This gives Rogers the opportunity to explain the Nixon administration's Middle East policy to Tito, who consistently has favored the Arab cause and is close to Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Tito leaves Addis Ababa Thursday to visit the Sudan, Egypt and Libya, three militant Arab states whose relations with the United States are cool or nonexistent. The Yugoslav president presumably will pass on to their leaders what he gleaned from Rogers and his assessment of it.

Addis Ababa is the third stop on the American secretary's 10-nation African tour. He will stay two days.

Rogers also spent two days each in Morocco and Tunisia, the only Arab countries on his itinerary. Both governments gave him reassurances of their friendship for the United States and their gratitude for American aid. But both disagreed with American policy in the Middle East, which they regard as unduly favorable to Israel. Rogers denied any bias and said the United States is trying to steer a middle course in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

ham said he sees no solution to the Middle East problem for at least a generation, but he stressed the view that in the end Israelis and Arabs will have to learn to live together "in justice." This meant particularly recognition of the rights of Palestinian Arabs.

Throughout much of Tuesday, several thousand university students demonstrated in downtown Tunis against U.S. support for Israel. Steel-helmeted police, troops and firemen were deployed at strategic points and American installations. There were a few scuffles but no one was hurt seriously.

Rogers canceled an appearance at the American-built university campus, and the students called the cancellation a "victory for the Arab cause."

In a television broadcast Tuesday night, Ladgham accused the students of violating the rules of politeness and hospitality and said such demonstrations would not be tolerated in the future. But he acknowledged that the demonstrators were motivated by "legitimate sentiment."

Miniskirts Blamed

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Lay preacher Gert Yssel, chairman of South Africa's anti-mini league, has prophesied doom and divine wrath ever since local girls hoisted their hemlines. The drought he predicted failed to materialize. Instead, months later, western Cape Province was rocked by an earthquake which killed nine people and caused millions of dollars damage. Yssel immediately issued a statement blaming miniskirts for the disaster and called for a countrywide day of atonement for "all the sins of the nation."

MEDICAL TEAM AT WORK — Stationed in Duc Hoa, South Vietnam, to aid the area's population, medics dispense pills and other medication to a Vietnamese civilian.

Heart Fund Sets Business Solicitation

Frank A. Gans, business chairman for the heart fund, announced today that solicitation of business contributions for the fund is now set for the week beginning Feb. 16.

FRANK GANS

Businesses will be contacted by mail with a follow up contact made by members of a volunteer group. In addition, informational literature about the American Heart Association and its work will be mailed to businessmen as part of the association's efforts to educate people about heart disease.

Gans pointed out that businessmen as a group are among the most hard hit by heart attacks and heart disease, and that it is in their own best interest to support the work of the heart association.

The business solicitation is one part of the community wide appeal for funds which also includes Heart Sunday, Feb. 22. Other special events include the balloon sale on Feb. 14, which is handled by Lois Brobst and SOS Club volunteers.

In addition, the York Street Free Will Baptist Church will sponsor a Gospel Sing on Feb. 27, donating 25 per cent of the proceeds to the Heart Fund.

Cleveland Attorney Heads Gilligan Drive

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Stephen J. Kovacic Jr., a Cleveland attorney, Tuesday was named manager of John J. Gilligan's campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Kovacic, 35, who practiced law in Cleveland for nine years, was Cuyahoga County manager for Gilligan's 1968 senatorial campaign. Gilligan carried Cuyahoga County but lost the election.

Senate Puts Off Showdown On School Integration Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Nixon administration's top education official openly joining the fight, the Senate has put off until next week a showdown on a Southern-sponsored provision to slow school desegregation.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield obtained an agreement Tuesday for voting times on desegregation riders to a $35 billion education bill. Beginning next Tuesday, each amendment to the massive bill will carry a two-hour limit on debate.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., floor manager for the measure, said he expected Mansfield's move to clear the way for final passage by Feb. 19.

The main issue is an amendment by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., permitting freedom of choice plans in public school attendance. Federal courts have ruled such programs violate civil rights laws unless they are the best method of achieving school desegregation.

James E. Allen Jr., U.S. commissioner of education, injected himself by sending a letter to Pell opposing the Stennis proposal, making its already slim chance of approval even less likely.

Allen asserted the administration is strongly committed to nationwide elimination of racial segregation in education. The Deep South senators have charged the administration with inaction in attacking segregation in schools outside the South. Allen said that, "As an educator, I am convinced that segregation by races in our nation's schools for any reason is unsound educationally, regardless of geography."

Allen wrote that the administration opposed the Stennis amendment because it runs counter to Supreme Court decisions and "would seriously restrict the enforcement efforts" under Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

This provision requires cutoff of federal funds to local governments on programs where segregation is practiced. A second Stennis proposal, likely to attract more support than his freedom of choice amendment, requires uniform enforcement of school desegregation policy throughout the U.S.

Allen said that "serious questions arise as to the legal effect and implications" of this amendment. He urged consideration by committees before a Senate vote is taken.

Report Defense Research Dissent Subsiding

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — From

Government Says It Knew Carpet Would Pass Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reportedly is aware of a type of carpeting blamed for helping spread flames through an Ohio nursing home where 32 died would meet proposed fire safety standards.

Malcolm W. Jensen of the National Bureau of Standards, in testimony prepared for a Senate subcommittee on long-term care for the aged, said carpet from the Marietta, Ohio, nursing home struck by fire Jan. 9 would be deemed safe under the test proposed to carry out amendments to the Flammable Fabrics Act.

Jensen said the proposed test is designed to keep off the market material so flammable as to be a danger in itself.

"Our aim is first to eliminate such highly flammable materials while we conduct research necessary to identify and measure those characteristics of carpets or rugs that produce smoke or propagate flame in fire situations," he added in written testimony.

Sanford in the West to MIT in the East, defense research on campuses is undergoing an acid test of dissent. But Pentagon officials say programs have not been seriously affected.

Defense Department leaders have watched with concern as military-related research in U.S. colleges and universities have come under increasing attack during the Vietnam war.

Now, they indicate the opposition has reached a peak and will subside—coincidentally or not, with the tapering off of the southeast Asia conflict.

"The pullout of American troops from Vietnam probably defused the situation," one Pentagon research specialist says. "The student groups are leaving the war issue and moving to the pollution problem."

Several American institutions were the focus of student—and in instances, faculty—opposition last year, prompting some Congress members to urge Pentagon cancellation of support of the schools' research programs.

Pentagon officials have chosen, instead, a policy of letting each institution work out its problems alone and on its own.

The student opposition has ranged from reasoned discussion to wild demonstrations, and some college laboratories doing Pentagon work were closed for a few days in 1969. But an official described this as "less significant than an epidemic of Asian flu."

The Pentagon also has been able to take a somewhat aloof attitude toward opposition because it has a huge market seeking its defense research dollars.

The Pentagon doles out approximately $240 million a year in the form of 5,000 research contracts and grants to some 300 academic institutions.

The Pentagon also thinks it can alleviate some student pressure against research contracts and grants involving secret work. Officials say these amount only to 4 per cent of the 5,000 research contracts and grants and they are trying to cut this amount by eliminating many unnecessary classification labels spawned by bureaucracy.

Pentagon officials say the give-and-take within the academic community over research is healthy and the merits of defense work can withstand the scrutiny.

They argue that the benefits run two ways: The Pentagon, by investing dollars in universities, gets questions answered, while the schools, by handling research projects, have better graduate programs.

"Most of the cooler heads, whether they hate Vietnam or are against ABM, have come to agree that these kinds of broad considerations are valid," an official asserts.

Heart Fund Sets Business Solicitation

Frank A. Gans, business chairman for the heart fund, announced today that solicitation of business contributions for the fund is now set for the week beginning Feb. 16.

FRANK GANS

Businesses will be contacted by mail with a follow up contact made by members of a volunteer group. In addition, informational literature about the American Heart Association and its work will be mailed to businessmen as part of the association's efforts to educate people about heart disease.

Gans pointed out that businessmen as a group are among the most hard hit by heart attacks and heart disease, and that it is in their own best interest to support the work of the heart association.

The business solicitation is one part of the community wide appeal for funds which also includes Heart Sunday, Feb. 22. Other special events include the balloon sale on Feb. 14, which is handled by Lois Brobst and SOS Club volunteers.

In addition, the York Street Free Will Baptist Church will sponsor a Gospel Sing on Feb. 27, donating 25 per cent of the proceeds to the Heart Fund.

Government Says It Knew Carpet Would Pass Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reportedly is aware of a type of carpeting blamed for helping spread flames through an Ohio nursing home where 32 died would meet proposed fire safety standards.

Malcolm W. Jensen of the National Bureau of Standards, in testimony prepared for a Senate subcommittee on long-term care for the aged, said carpet from the Marietta, Ohio, nursing home struck by fire Jan. 9 would be deemed safe under the test proposed to carry out amendments to the Flammable Fabrics Act.

Jensen said the proposed test is designed to keep off the market material so flammable as to be a danger in itself.

"Our aim is first to eliminate such highly flammable materials while we conduct research necessary to identify and measure those characteristics of carpets or rugs that produce smoke or propagate flame in fire situations," he added in written testimony.

Sanford in the West to MIT in the East, defense research on campuses is undergoing an acid test of dissent. But Pentagon officials say programs have not been seriously affected.

Defense Department leaders have watched with concern as military-related research in U.S. colleges and universities have come under increasing attack during the Vietnam war.

Now, they indicate the opposition has reached a peak and will subside—coincidentally or not, with the tapering off of the southeast Asia conflict.

"The pullout of American troops from Vietnam probably defused the situation," one Pentagon research specialist says. "The student groups are leaving the war issue and moving to the pollution problem."

Several American institutions were the focus of student—and in instances, faculty—opposition last year, prompting some Congress members to urge Pentagon cancellation of support of the schools' research programs.

Pentagon officials have chosen, instead, a policy of letting each institution work out its problems alone and on its own.

The student opposition has ranged from reasoned discussion to wild demonstrations, and some college laboratories doing Pentagon work were closed for a few days in 1969. But an official described this as "less significant than an epidemic of Asian flu."

The Pentagon also has been able to take a somewhat aloof attitude toward opposition because it has a huge market seeking its defense research dollars.

The Pentagon does out approximately $240 million a year in the form of 5,000 research contracts and grants to some 300 academic institutions.

The Pentagon also thinks it can alleviate some student pressure against research contracts and grants involving secret work. Officials say these amount only to 4 per cent of the 5,000 research contracts and grants and they are trying to cut this amount by eliminating many unnecessary classification labels spawned by bureaucracy.

Pentagon officials say the give-and-take within the academic community over research is healthy and the merits of defense work can withstand the scrutiny.

They argue that the benefits run two ways: The Pentagon, by investing dollars in universities, gets questions answered, while the schools, by handling research projects, have better graduate programs.

"Most of the cooler heads, whether they hate Vietnam or are against ABM, have come to agree that these kinds of broad considerations are valid," an official asserts.

Senate Puts Off Showdown On School Integration Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Nixon administration's top education official openly joining the fight, the Senate has put off until next week a showdown on a Southern-sponsored provision to slow school desegregation.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield obtained an agreement Tuesday for voting times on desegregation riders to a $35 billion education bill. Beginning next Tuesday, each amendment to the massive bill will carry a two-hour limit on debate.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., floor manager for the measure, said he expected Mansfield's move to clear the way for final passage by Feb. 19.

The main issue is an amendment by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., permitting freedom of choice plans in public school attendance. Federal courts have ruled such programs violate civil rights laws unless they are the best method of achieving school desegregation.

James F. Allen Jr., U.S. commissioner of education, injected himself by sending a letter to Pell opposing the Stennis proposal, making its already slim chance of approval even less likely.

Allen asserted the administration is strongly committed to nationwide elimination of racial segregation in education.

The Deep South senators have charged the administration with inaction in attacking segregation in schools outside the South. Allen said that, "As an educator, I am convinced that segregation by races in our nation's schools for any reason is unsound educationally, regardless of geography."

Allen wrote that the administration opposed the Stennis amendment because it runs counter to Supreme Court decisions and "would seriously restrict the enforcement efforts" under Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

This provision requires cutoff of federal funds to local governments on programs where segregation is practiced.

A second Stennis proposal, likely to attract more support than his freedom of choice amendment, requires uniform enforcement of school desegregation policy throughout the U.S.

Allen said that "serious questions arise as to the legal effect and implications" of this amendment. He urged consideration by committees before a Senate vote is taken.

Mustangs Start Tourney Trail

Vikings, Braves End Cage Season This Weekend

Westfall starts its tournament trail this weekend while Teays Valley and Logan Elm wrap up their regular season action.

The Mustangs meet Carroll at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Lancaster High School, this year's sectional site for county Class A quintets. Teays Valley hosts Dublin Thursday as the Vikings go after a share of the Metropolitan League cage title.

Moved up from Friday, the reserve game will start at 6 p.m. instead of the usual 7 p.m. starting time.

On Saturday the Vikings host Logan Elm in the season finale for both teams.

OTHER area action sees Laurelville traveling to Huntington High School Saturday and Zane Trace going after its second consecutive undefeated season by hosting Unioto Friday.

Carroll was the second seeded team in the Lancaster sectional. The Bulldogs have an impressive 13-4 record for the season.

However, one of their losses was to Logan Elm. Coach Paul Hoskins' club has an 8-10 mark for the season. Of the 10 losses, two were close decisions to the Braves.

Records mean nothing when tournament action begins and Hoskins' herd could have easy sailing to a district berth if they can get past the first game.

Greg Bigam, Bill Blair, Randy Alkire, Steve Sines, Rick and Bruce Beatty and Tom Hawker have been carrying the load for the Mustangs most of the season. And Hoskins will bank heavily on his veterans during the tournament.

Teays Valley should improve on its season record of 13-3. They have split with West Jefferson during the season and a win Thursday will give them half of the cage crown.

EARLIER in the season the Vikings had little trouble putting down the Shamrocks on their home court.

Saturday, Dale Lambert, Ed McCord, Ed Combs, Larry Dixon and Wayne Brown, the Viking starting five, will be after their second win over Logan Elm.

The Braves have lost regular Jeff Jones for the remainder of the season. Jones cracked a bone in his leg last week and played on the injured leg Saturday.

Although not in a cast, he has been ruled out of action for at least three weeks.

The loss of Jones leaves Coach Chuck Pritchard dangerously short of experienced bench strength.

K. C. Jones, Mark Knece, Chuck Sims, Rod Riddle, Greg Fouch, Tom Speakman and Roger Evans have logged the most playing time of the remaining Braves.

Logan Elm and Teays Valley have their first tournament clashes Feb. 20. The Braves meet Pickerington (12-4) at 7 p.m. at Lancaster. Teays Valley clashes with Columbus Central 6:30 p.m. in the Columbus Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Bill Russell On Hand, But Celtics Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bill Russell brought a glimmer of light to troubled Boston, but Phoenix' Sunshine Kid sent the Celtics back into eclipse.

Russell appeared in Boston Garden Tuesday night for the first time since retiring last August as player-coach of the National Basketball Association champs—and suffered through the Celtics' 122-117 loss to the Connie Hawkins-led Suns.

Hawkins poured in 35 points as Phoenix dealt the Celtics' playoff hopes a staggering setback. The loss kept them five games behind the fourth place Philadelphia 76ers, who bowed to Milwaukee 139-131 as Lew Alcindor hit for 36 points.

In other NBA games, Cincinnati nipped Detroit 117-115 on Tom Van Arsdale's corner jumper with two seconds to play; San Francisco trimmed Atlanta 113-104 and Baltimore defeated Los Angeles 111-106.

The Celtics, who trailed by as many as nine points in the third period, closed within two late in the final session. But a string of free throws by Paul Silas and rookie Neal Hawk, followed by a field goal by Hawkins with one minute to play, put the Suns beyond reach.

Gail Goodrich added 22 points for the Suns. Rookie Jo Jo White had 21 for the Celtics, who had won three in a row.

Russell watched the game from the stands with Celtics' General Manager Red Auerbach. The bearded, 6-foot-10 Boston favorite received a standing ovation when the fans spotted him.

Basketball Commissioners Hold Talks On Pro Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — With college seniors like Pete Maravich and Bob Lanier in the background shooting for a basket full of dollars, the National and American basketball associations took another step toward the inevitable merger Tuesday.

Commissioners Walter Kennedy of the National Basketball Association and Jack Dolph of the American Basketball Association finally got together to plot a course that would take them away from a colossal bidding war this spring in the college draft.

They talked for two hours

about a merger, undoubtedly before the college season ends, which would include common draft and sharply cutting the bargaining power of graduating seniors.

At the end of their meeting, they issued a joint statement saying three-man committees from each league would meet at their earliest convenience to crystallize merger plans.

The resumption of talks, which were broken off last August, comes less than a week after the NBA owners decided to expand from 14 to 18 teams next season after weeks of wrangling involving expansion of a merger. The rapid fire decisions first to expand and then to talk merger makes it appear that some compromise was reached to do both.

The committees will be faced with several important considerations—the number of ABA teams to take part in any merger, the cost to the ABA of a union with the NBA and the signing away by the ABA of NBA players in the past. The ABA would be expected to drop its anti-trust suit against the NBA in the case of a merger.

The ABA is considered to have four solid franchises among its 11 teams—the Nets, Carolina, Indiana and Kentucky. The question is: how many of the other ABA cities—Denver, Dallas, Los Angeles, Washington, New Orleans, Pittsburgh, and Miami—would be involved. And if all 11 teams are not taken in, how much compensation would have to be paid those left out.

Then there is the indemnity the more established NBA is certain to demand from the newer ABA to agree to a merger.

The player signings also are certain to be a major consideration with such NBA stars as Rick Barry, Billy Cunningham, Dave Bing and Zelmo Beaty already playing or signed to play in the future in the ABA.

Washington Caps Top Lakers, 137-123

The Caps recent surge—five victories in seven games—increased their record to 27-26, the latest a 137-123 triumph over Los Angeles Tuesday night in one of three American Basketball Association contests.

In other games Western Division leader New Orleans topped Carolina, 97-84, and Dallas bombed Miami 151-128.

Seattle Pilots Get Year's Reprieve

They were to meet again today to try to iron out the details.

The owners' after a day-night session Tuesday, reached agreement that the hard-pressed Pilots should get another year of reprieve.

Mustangs Start Tourney Trail

Vikings, Braves End Cage Season This Weekend

Westfall starts its tournament trail this weekend while Teays Valley and Logan Elm wrap up their regular season action.

The Mustangs meet Carroll at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Lancaster High School, this year's sectional site for county Class A quintets. Teays Valley hosts Dublin Thursday as the Vikings go after a share of the Metropolitan League cage title.

Moved up from Friday, the reserve game will start at 6 p.m. instead of the usual 7 p.m. starting time.

On Saturday the Vikings host Logan Elm in the season finale for both teams.

OTHER area action sees Laurelville traveling to Huntington High School Saturday and Zane Trace going after its second consecutive undefeated season by hosting Unioto Friday.

Carroll was the second seeded team in the Lancaster sectional. The Bulldogs have an impressive 13-4 record for the season.

However, one of their losses was to Logan Elm. Coach Paul Hoskins' club has an 8-10 mark for the season. Of the 10 losses, two were close decisions to the Braves.

Records mean nothing when tournament action begins and Hoskins' herd could have easy sailing to a district berth if they can get past the first game.

Greg Bigam, Bill Blair, Randy Alkire, Steve Sines, Rick and Bruce Beatty and Tom Hawker have been carrying the load for the Mustangs most of the season. And Hoskins will bank heavily on his veterans during the tournament.

Teays Valley should improve on its season record of 13-3. They have split with West Jefferson during the season and a win Thursday will give them half of the cage crown.

EARLIER in the season the Vikings had little trouble putting down the Shamrocks on their home court.

Saturday, Dale Lambert, Ed McCord, Ed Combs, Larry Dixon and Wayne Brown, the Viking starting five, will be after their second win over Logan Elm.

The Braves have lost regular Jeff Jones for the remainder of the season. Jones cracked a bone in his leg last week and played on the injured leg Saturday.

Although not in a cast, he has been ruled out of action for at least three weeks.

The loss of Jones leaves Coach Chuck Pritchard dangerously short of experienced bench strength.

K. C. Jones, Mark Knece, Chuck Sims, Rod Riddle, Greg Foucher, Tom Speakman and Roger Evans have logged the most playing time of the remaining Braves.

Logan Elm and Teays Valley have their first tournament clashes Feb. 20. The Braves meet Pickerington (12-4) at 7 p.m. at Lancaster. Teays Valley clashes with Columbus Central 6:30 p.m. in the Columbus Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Bill Russell On Hand, But Celtics Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bill Russell brought a glimmer of light to troubled Boston, but Phoenix' Sunshine Kid sent the Celtics back into eclipse.

Russell appeared in Boston Garden Tuesday night for the first time since retiring last August as player-coach of the National Basketball Association champs—and suffered through the Celtics' 122-117 loss to the Connie Hawkins-led Suns.

Hawkins poured in 35 points as Phoenix dealt the Celtics' play-off hopes a staggering setback. The loss kept them five games behind the fourth place Philadelphia 76ers, who bowed to Milwaukee 139-131 as Lew Alcindor hit for 36 points.

In other NBA games, Cincinnati nipped Detroit 117-115 on Tom Van Arsdale's corner jumper with two seconds to play; San Francisco trimmed Atlanta 113-104 and Baltimore defeated Los Angeles 111-106.

The Celtics, who trailed by as many as nine points in the third period, closed within two late in the final session. But a string of free throws by Paul Silas and rookie Neal Walk, followed by a field goal by Hawkins with one minute to play, put the Suns beyond reach.

Gail Goodrich added 22 points for the Suns. Rookie Jo Jo White had 21 for the Celtics, who had won three in a row.

Russell watched the game from the stands with Celtics' General Manager Red Auerbach. The bearded, 6-foot-10 Boston favorite received a standing ovation when the fans spotted him.

K. C. Jones, Mark Knece, Chuck Sims, Rod Riddle, Greg Foucher, Tom Speakman and Roger Evans have logged the most playing time of the remaining Braves.

Logan Elm and Teays Valley have their first tournament clashes Feb. 20. The Braves meet Pickerington (12-4) at 7 p.m. at Lancaster. Teays Valley clashes with Columbus Central 6:30 p.m. in the Columbus Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Circleville, Teays Valley Play Feb. 20 In Tournament

Circleville and Teays Valley play in the Class AA central district tournament Feb. 20.

The Vikings drew Columbus Central during the tournament pairings held Tuesday at Willard's Restaurant in Bexley and Circleville drew Pleasant View.

The Vikings play at 6:30 p.m. against the Central Pirates, a team they beat earlier this year in the Teays Valley gymnasium. Central has a record of five wins and 11 losses. The Vikings

Basketball Commissioners Hold Talks On Pro Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — With college seniors like Pete Maravich and Bob Lanier in the background shooting for a basket full of dollars, the National and American basketball associations took another step toward the inevitable merger Tuesday.

Commissioners Walter Kennedy of the National Basketball Association and Jack Dolph of the American Basketball Association finally got together to plot a course that would take them away from a colossal bidding war this spring in the college draft.

They talked for two hours

about a merger, undoubtedly before the college season ends, which would include common draft and sharply cutting the bargaining power of graduating seniors.

At the end of their meeting, they issued a joint statement saying three-man committees from each league would meet at their earliest convenience to crystallize merger plans.

The resumption of talks, which were broken off last August, comes less than a week after the NBA owners decided to expand from 14 to 18 teams next season after weeks of wrangling involving expansion of a merger. The rapid fire decisions first to expand and then to talk merger makes it appear that some compromise was reached to do both.

The committees will be faced with several important considerations—the number of ABA teams to take part in any merger, the cost to the ABA of a union with the NBA and the signing away by the ABA of NBA players in the past. The ABA would be expected to drop its anti-trust suit against the NBA in the case of a merger.

The ABA is considered to have four solid franchises among its 11 teams—the Nets, Carolina, Indiana and Kentucky. The question is: how many of the other ABA cities—Denver, Dallas, Los Angeles, Washington, New Orleans, Pittsburgh, and Miami—would be involved. And if all 11 teams are not taken in, how much compensation would have to be paid those left out.

Then there is the indemnity the more established NBA is certain to demand from the newer ABA to agree to a merger.

The player signings also are certain to be a major consideration with such NBA stars as Rick Barry, Billy Cunningham, Dave Bing and Zelmo Beaty already playing or signed to play in the future in the ABA.

Washington Caps Top Lakers, 137-123

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rick Barry, regaining his touch after a bout with injuries, hit for a season high 36 points as the Washington Caps ripped off their third straight victory.

The Caps recent surge—five victories in seven games—increased their record to 27-26, the latest a 137-123 triumph over Los Angeles Tuesday night in one of three American Basketball Association contests.

In other games Western Division leader New Orleans topped Carolina, 97-84, and Dallas bombed Miami 151-128.

Seattle Pilots Get Year's Reprieve

CHICAGO (AP) — Seattle's franchise in the American league appears assured for at least another year on a shaky financial basis which baseball's owners still are trying to solidify.

They were to meet again today to try to iron out the details.

The owners' after a day-night session Tuesday, reached agreement that the hard-pressed Pilots should get another year of reprieve.

are not sinful. "Nowhere in Scripture is humanity divided into isolated units on the grounds of biological or natural differences," the commission reported the Cape province synod of the Nederduitse Gereformeerde Kerk, largest of South Africa's three staunchly Calvinist Dutch Reformed churches and one of the pillars of white Afrikaner segregationism.

Objecting to the report, church actuary Dr. J. D. Vorster, brother of prime minister John Vorster, said the commission had seen marriage too much from an "individualistic viewpoint" and not enough as part of a given society.

The synod decided to refer the report back to the commission and to the general synod for further investigation instead of adopting it as the official viewpoint of the church.

Camp For Crippled Adults Is Memorable Experience

By BETTY DAWLEY
Herald Staff Writer

Judy Boyer of 357 Watt St. has a story to tell. It is directed principally to crippled adults in Pickaway County.

Judy, 29 years old, with a keen, intelligent sense of humor radiates charm from a wheelchair to which she has been confined since the age of 15. For the past four summers she has attended Camp Pitinger at Sandusky as a guest of the Easter Seal Society during a week session set aside for adult campers.

Judy's story concerns her camping experience. She wants to tell adults that "going to camp may sound ridiculous, but it isn't."

When first invited by the local chapter of the Easter Seal Society to spend a week at Camp Pitinger, Judy was reluctant to accept, thinking camping was for children. But accept she did and now recalls that "opportunity knocked" and she opened the door onto the finest experiences of her life as a crippled adult.

SESSIONS at the Sandusky camp site have now become Judy's annual vacation where for one week she can do "anything any person can do who can walk." With the aid of excellent counselors, campers swim in heated pools, picnic, enjoy hayrides and have camp-outs.

Two counselors are assigned each cabin which accommodates five campers. New blacktop paths were recently laid on the grounds for easier maneuverability of wheel chairs to the dining hall and craft shops. For crippled adults with no dexterity for operation, counselors supply the needed manpower.

The beauty of the camp, according to Judy, is she never felt left out. Add to that the social contacts and the invaluable therapeutic results of physical activities and you have the reason why the week's camping session has become the highlight of Judy's year.

Old friendships were renewed and new friends made from the campers who totaled 57 during the week Judy attended camp last summer and included a 96-year-old lady who has repeatedly returned annually to the weekly camp session.

Personable Judy, rejuvenated socially, mentally and physically and unable to contain her enthusiasm for Camp Pitinger, wished to tell her story when she returned home last summer. The telling has been delayed but comes at a most appropriate time as the Easter Seal campaign gets underway locally when seals are placed in the mail Feb. 25 and 26.

To those who contribute to the campaign, you are now aware of one of the services provided by the Easter Seal

Society through your donation.

JUDY'S crippling is a result of a degenerate disease that was barely noticed when it commenced with a general weakness, progressed to loss of balance and finally to the loss of leg use.

She graduated from Circleville High School, having attended the final two years in a wheelchair which, then, she could manipulate. The crippling disease has since spread to other limbs so that there is no longer dexterity in her fingers and her arms no longer function.

She periodically undergoes clinic tests as doctors continue research to uncover the cause of disease and how to eliminate it.

With an alert mind that remains wondrously stimulated, Judy urges "support of the Easter Seal campaign. That's important. They are doing a wonderful job."

If Judy's story has provoked interest for camping to other crippled children or adults in the county, members of the Easter Seal Society to contact for additional information are Mrs. Montford Kirkwood Jr. at 474-3633 or Mrs. Elliott Mason, 474-5253.

Group Protests Outdated Ohio Abortion Statutes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — About a dozen women and two children, carrying signs protesting Ohio's abortion laws, were refused admittance to the House gallery Tuesday.

The group, mostly from the Dayton and Cincinnati area, carried signs saying "Abort the 1841 abortion laws," "Save Women's Lives," and "Freedom Now." One child carried a sign reading, "I'm wanted. All children should be."

A spokesman for the group said the women are not part of the "burn the bra" movement. "Our only point is to repeal Ohio's cruel and archaic abortion laws," said Kathy Kleine, a Dayton housewife.

The House Sergeant at Arms also refused to allow the women to distribute leaflets in the gallery and on the House floor. The women were told they could enter the gallery only if they discarded their signs, but they refused, and picketed in the rotunda.

The leaflet said in part, "Ohio's 1841 law prohibiting abortion is cruel, inhumane and destructive of both women and children. There is no excuse for its retention on the books." The leaflet also said, "We want to make it clear that we are firmly opposed to abortion reform. To reform the existing law would leave the real problems untouched while creating the illusion they had been solved. A reform bill would avoid the central issue: The right of a woman to determine for herself whether or not she will bear a child."

Ohio law presently permits abortions only when a woman's physical or mental health is endangered. The protesting women have promised to return to seek repeal of all abortion laws, thus allowing abortions for any consenting woman.

There is no abortion repeal bill before the legislature although an abortion reform bill failed to get committee approval last year.

Mrs. Kleine said opposition to repealing the laws is "well organized and vocal, but doesn't really represent the feeling of most women in Ohio."

Several members of the group said they see little chance of action on abortion repeal in this election year.

Cleveland Hits Order On Pollution

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An attorney for the City of Cleveland placed a political label Tuesday on a state order to Cleveland to submit Lake Erie pollution abatement plans by April 1.

The order came at a regular meeting of the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board, in which Cleveland officials were asked to explain why they were more than two years behind schedule in beefing up the capacity and equipment at three sewage treatment plants.

Cleveland's failure to submit plans for an area interceptor sewer for 18 surrounding suburbs also was criticized by the board.

Ted Gullia, utilities attorney for the city, one of several city officials at the board meeting, charged afterwards that "these directives are motivated by something other than the sincere desire to clean up Cleveland's pollution."

Gullia said he thought "Gov. Rhodes has seen pollution on the front page. But pollution should not be tied to any political campaign."

Fred Morr, board member and director of Ohio's Natural Resources Department, read a prepared statement which said, in part: "The board must further be mindful that the General Assembly has given it power to act in such cases."

Circleville School Board Considers Course Revisions

Amendments in the city school's sick leave policy and changes or additions to school curriculum were a main topic of discussion at the February meeting of the Circleville Board of Education Tuesday evening.

One revision seriously considered and approved by Board members was the recommendation to require only one unit of math in the general, industrial and home economic areas for students who show acceptable proficiency.

A new curriculum was given the nod in the home economic department, setting up a general course of study to include four years of vocational home economics, with specified semester studies in the junior and senior years. If present enrollment in this area continues to increase, Superintendent Fritz Jacobs advised members it would be advisable to consider employment of a second instructor.

A new course was added for seniors not enrolled in the vocational home economics course to offer home management to girls who otherwise would not be able to include such courses in their schedule.

Other changes were considered in the industrial arts area with suggestions for expansion. These changes rest on the success of the new Joint Vocational School planned by school districts in Pickaway and Ross Counties.

Members approved the purchase of ten typewriters for the business education department at the high school and draperies for the high school home economics room and the Business and Child Accounting offices at the Junior High building.

Mrs. Frances Pritt, Miss Elizabeth Kenworthy and Richard Halley were accepted as additions to the substitute teachers listing. William H. Giffin was considered as a replacement for Robert Liston, who recently resigned his position as school bus driver.

A resignation submitted by William Brooke as Junior High track coach was accepted.

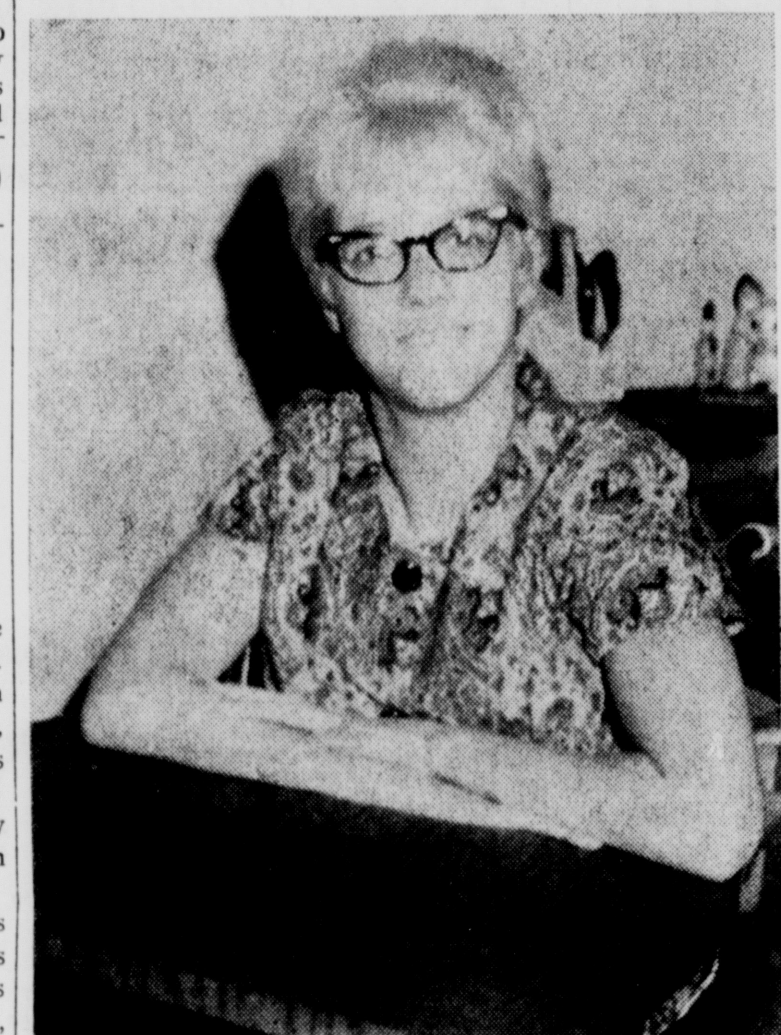

Jacobs reminded members that Donald Metzler, who is coordinating the district's Family Life Education study, will present a progress report at the March 10 meeting of the Board.

Metropolitan Unit Topic For Realtors

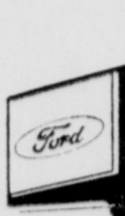

The new Metropolitan Housing unit at Chillicothe provided a very interesting program for the Pickaway County Board of Realtors at their regular monthly meeting at Pickaway Arms Tuesday evening.

Floyd Shaffer, chairman of the Metropolitan Housing Board, gave a brief resume of the project since its inception in 1965. Mrs. Betty Knab, the enthusiastic Housing Authority secretary, told of the qualifying and selecting of the tenants to occupy the 242 units. These units range from one to five bedrooms, with rents from $40 to $60 monthly. An active question and answer session followed her presentation.

Two new affiliates to the Pickaway County Board of Realtors were present, the First National Bank, represented by George Haney, and the Third National Bank, represented by Kenneth Fosnaugh.

ENTHUSIASTIC CAMPER — Petite, blond Judy Boyer relates camping experiences from her wheelchair at her home, 357 Watt St., where she resides with her mother, Mrs. Lona Boyer. The special-built wheel chair was presented to Judy through the local Easter Seal Society who were also responsible for sending Judy to Camp Pitinger, for crippled children and adults, maintained by the society at the state level.
